HEIFETZ WORRIED OVER HIS "SMILE"

Famous Violinist Doesn't Like to Be Branded With Such Names as "Sphinx"

Heifetz's smile, or the lack of it when he appears on the concert stage, is causing him endless trouble and worry, he admitted to a reporter following one of his recent concerts. His serious expression when he appears before an audience has won him such epithets as "The cold, aloof Heifetz," and "The 'sphinx'—names which he declares he resents most of all.

"Now they are even betting on my facial expression," he said ruefully. "Following one of my concerts, when I came out to bow after a number, a man in a row near the front singled a large bunch of keys at me excitedly. He looked so utterly ridiculous that I laughed outright. Immediately his face became wreathed in smiles. Afterward I learned he had bet with the companion that I would smile at least once during the performance. He won—but evidently he did not think it safe to trust the outcome to me.

"I do not feel that I am impenetrable or cold or aloof or any of those things that I am constantly being called. Invariably I have a feeling of great sympathy with my audience. I am not aware that I appear serious, and if I do not smile, I suppose it is because I become so absorbed in playing that I forget everything else. If a smile does not come spontaneously, why resort to an artificial grimace?"

Jascha Heifetz, the famous violinist, will appear at Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday evening, Feb. 11. Tickets for the performance still can be obtained at Belling drug-store.

EXPECT COUNCIL ACTION ON RADIO ORDINANCE

Recommendation against adoption of that part of the proposed ordinance relating to regulation and inspection of radios in the city is expected to be made by the ordinance committee at the common council meeting Wednesday night. The committee held a public hearing on the ordinance last Monday evening at the city hall, and objection to the new measure was practically unanimous.

The council also is expected to take further action on the resolution adopted several weeks ago decreasing the pavement assessments against Wisconsin-ave property holders. Alderman Phillip Vogt was author of the resolution which amended an old measure by decreasing the width at which to charge residents on that street from about 4 feet to 12.

At its last meeting in January, the council voted to reconsider its action on the Vogt resolution, but then failed to go any further on the matter. Reconsideration of the resolution probably will be urged Wednesday night. It is believed an attempt will be made to kill the Vogt resolution.

MOTORISTS THROWN INTO BANK OF SNOW ESCAPE UNINJURED

The snow on highways may be a menace to motoring, but there is at least one Appleton driver grateful to snowbanks.

While going south on highway 41, a car driven by Robert Zwerg, 814 N. North Division-st, stalled in a rut, crashed over the top of a snow bank, and turned turtle twice about a mile south of McCarthy's Corners, early Sunday morning.

The two occupants were thrown from the machine into a huge drift, but were uninjured. The top of the roadster was demolished and the front end was smashed.

Zwerg and his companion were returning from a party at Green Bay when the rear wheels of the car slewed in a deep rut and sent the car headlong over the snow-bank.

INDIAN DIDN'T WANT TO WED, HE CLAIMS

He said she and a man from Kan. City came to his home one night and asked him to go for a ride.

"Did you want to go?"

"No, getting dark."

The witness said he went to Oke-meh and that they remained there all night.

"Did you have anything to drink?" asked Wheeler.

"No."

"Did you ever take a drink?" Barnett paused and smiled broadly.

"Yes," he finally said.

The next day, Barnett said, he again drove with the woman and man and he rode beside the woman.

"What did you talk about?"

"Wanted to get married."

"Did you want to get married?"

"No."

"You never did want to get married, did you?" continued Wheeler.

"No."

"She asked you to marry her?"

"Yes."

Barnett, in response to questions then related how he was married twice, in different states.

"You never did want to get married, did you?" again questioned Wheeler.

"Not that way."

"What do you mean?"

"No twice," Barnett replied, still grinning. "That wasn't fair. Didn't care much about it."

SCHOOL IS POSTING GRADES OF STUDENTS

Acting upon the psychological assumption that the public posting of grades acts as an impetus to greater scholarship, a novel method of recording grades in arithmetic has been instituted at St. Theresa school. A bulletin board with pockets has been posted in the seventh and eighth grade classrooms, and each student's card is kept in one of the pockets, each slot representing a grade. In the center is a red dividing line, and all cards contained in this pocket are known as "Border-line" cards. All slots below the red line contain failure cards, and the pockets from the red line uphold the cards with grades of 75 to 100.

TEACH SLIDE RULE IN EVENING SCHOOL

A course in the use of the slide rule will be offered in night classes at the Appleton vocational school starting next Monday evening, according to Carl Bertram, coordinator of the school. The course is especially designed for those interested in the theory of the slide rule method. Multiplication, division, square root, and percentages will be studied. The class meets on Monday and Wednesday evenings and enrollments are being taken at the school now.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Mostly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; probably light local snow; somewhat colder tonight and Tuesday in extreme northwest portion, and in north central portion.

GENERAL WEATHER

The pressure has continued high over the lake region and adjacent territory over the weekend, with moderately cold weather. A low pressure area appears to be developing over the northern plains this morning, causing some snow or rain over the Great plains. This should cause some snow flurries in this section as the low moves northward. The pressure is high and the weather cold over the Canadian northwest, but the condition as yet is not as severe as that during the month of January.

Revolt In Spain Is Put Down, de Rivera Insists

Madrid—(AP)—Alarming reports of open rebellion of the garrison at Valencia southeastern coast of Spain were met by the government of Premier Primo de Rivera Monday with an official statement that the situation there had cleared and that the military was maintaining discipline.

To prevent recurrence of the situation, however, the premier said, the government had found it necessary to fortify its position with the establishment of a strong dictatorship in the affected area.

He added that the government would not change the dates of the pending international exhibitions at Barcelona and Seville. Nor, he said, would the visit of the king and queen of Denmark, who are enroute to Spain, be deferred.

Messages conveying this information were dispatched to civil governors and captains-general of all the provinces. The premier added that he felt the utmost indignation that he felt the reason clouded by force of malcontents, with a small country through several days, damaging enormously the prestige and credit of Spain with the rest of the world.

NOTED PIANIST TO PLAY IN APPLETON

Alexander Brailowsky Appears Here Wednesday Under Artist Series

The season before he made his debut in America, Alexander Brailowsky, who will play at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening, as the fourth number of the Community Artist series, was the sensation of Europe.

Thirteen recitals in Paris before houses packed to the doors is his record in that city in one season, and his triumphs in London were similar. After a series of four concerts on consecutive days, the London press said, "There can be no question that this astonishing young artist is a piano superman."

In America, Canada and South America he is one of the most-talked about pianists of the season. He is always a "sure-fire box office attraction," and two days after seats for his concerts have gone on sale tickets are at a premium.

After his sensational American debut, Leonard Lieblich in the New York American said, "Flattering reports which preceded him here from abroad were in no wise exaggerated. He is an artist completely equipped to do justice to the best requirements of modern piano playing. He has a lovely tone, an expert technique to do justice to the best requirements of modern piano playing. He has a lovely tone, an expert technique and an interpretative range that seems as much at home in post-romantic suggestion as in passionate expression."

MICHIGAN SOLONS DEBATE CRIME LAW

Revision of Statute Would Exempt Dry Law Offenders from Life Terms

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The administration program relative to the revision of the criminal statutes and perhaps the many sided problem of financing state institutional improvements may be laid before the legislature this week.

Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney general, said Monday that he hopes to have administration amendments to the habitual criminal act ready for submission Tuesday. They will be fiercely combatted by the dry forces, he added, especially by R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league. Governor Green has served notice that he will fight back.

If adopted, the amendments will remove liquor offenders from the life sentence category. They will receive 7 1/2 to 15 years for a fourth or subsequent violation, rather than the life imprisonment which now is mandatory.

The puzzling finance problem is to be offered the legislature without favoritism, except that the governor believes the income tax plan is the best yet proposed. He has been busy securing data relative to diverting highway funds, an amusement tax, a head tax, a non-essential tax and other plans. He will send them all to the legislature, with the data he has acquired.

In effect, the governor's word to the legislature will be: "I think the income tax is the best plan so far here."

That Fat Funmaker From Moscow Again In New York

BY G. D. SEYMOUR

New York—Nikita Balleff, that fat old funmaker from Moscow, is again a sojourner in New York, with a fresh edition of his famous "Chauve-Souris."

This is his sixth visit since 1922 and his new bill of Russian vaudeville is frequently more pretentious than its predecessors. It was he and his troupe who started the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" marching across the United States, who introduced American dance orchestras to the strains of "Oh, Katerina" and who, in a more recent visit, left behind that Alpine ditty, "I Miss My Swiss."

This year's counterpart of these mementoes is "You Ought to Hear Olaf Laugh"—though it happens to be a Dutch song, written by two Americans.

Papa Balleff, as amusingly inept at English as ever in his celebrated role of master of ceremonies, poses grinning jests and comic explosions between a succession of 18 numbers, three or four of which were acclaimed by first nighters as comparable with the best of any "Chauve-Souris." They include "Les Amours de Jean-Pierre," a burlesque of French grand opera; "The Midnight Review," with Napoleon arising from his grave to salute the shades of his general; and a number, "The Celebrated Popoff's Porcelain," filled with dancing and posing.

Enough New Yorkers are Balleff fans to assure the Russian troupe a welcome season after season. As in other years Morris Gest is its sponsor.

A "FABULOUS COMEDY"

From the classic novel "Serena Blandish," written by "A Lady of Quality" and subtitled "The Difficulty of Getting Married," S. N. Behrman has fashioned a play with the same title and one which J. Edgar Harris, presenting it, calls "A Fabulous Comedy."

It is a scintillant fantasy, woven about the efforts of Serena Blandish, child of the London dock district, to find herself a husband in Mayfair. Her candor and her kindness are against her and she cannot feign the reserve and haughty hauteur that brings the most eligible bachelors to their knees before young women. At last she flees, unmarried, with the youth who can't give her anything but love, baby.

Ruth Gordon, who has not been seen on Broadway since "Saturday's Children," is the Serena Blandish of the play; A. E. Matthews is the sage and subtle butler; Constance Collier the avid Countess Flor di Folio, and Julia Hoyt the countess' most splendidly gowned guest. They and others lend the play the suavity and finesse which it takes to pile one upon another such epigrams as the butler's "In any emotion it is the intensity that matters, not the worthiness of the object," or the countess' "A bachelor sometimes turns suddenly to marriage like an athlete to religion."

I think perhaps it's from fatigue.

"Dynamo," Eugene O'Neill's new play, is in rehearsal by the Theater Guild with a company in which Glenn Anders, Claudette Colbert, Dudley Digges and George Gaul are principals. The first act of the play was to visit with Phillip Moeller, director, a hydro-electric plant near O'Neill's former summer home at Ridgefield, Conn, similar to the plant in which part of the play's action develops.

COLUMBIA STUDENT FOR SIX DECADES DIES AT AGE OF 78

New York—(AP)—William Cullen Kemp, born in Janesville, Wis., known as "the perpetual student" at Columbia university died Sunday at the age of 78. He studied at the university for 60 years.

During his years of study he acquired 13 degrees. It was said in university circles that when he started as an undergraduate he had no liking for study and that a wealthy relative, in order to urge him on, left him $2,500 a year as long as he remained in college. His friends, however, said that he wanted to study and remained at Columbia to indulge in this desire.

Undergraduates for decades called him "Doc" and conferred upon him a degree not listed in the catalogue—D. P. M.—"doctor of perpetual motion." Aside from his studies, he traveled considerably, but always made certain that he was registered as a student.

Notwithstanding his scholastic bent, he was greatly interested in student activities and always attended the annual "cane spree" and junior proms.

He was a member of the sons of the American Revolution and several prominent New York clubs.

SHOEMAKER FRIEND OF CAL AWAITING LATTER'S RETURN

James Lucey's Homely Philosophy Helped Coolidge Into White House

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
Northampton, Mass.—When Calvin Coolidge left this town eight years ago to serve as vice president, his old friend, the shoemaker James Lucey, accompanied him to the station and was the last to shake his hand. He wants to be the first to welcome him home after March fourth.

And when the boxes and crates from Washington are delivered at the Coolidge home, Lucey realizes the time is growing near, and that the man who, as president, wrote to him, "If it were not for you I would not be here," is actually coming back.

THEY TALKED TOGETHER
For years ago, when Coolidge was a student and later a young politician, he made a habit of dropping into Lucey's shop and listening to the homely philosophies of the shoemaker.

"He could make his home anywhere in the world, and associate with the most famous, but he chooses to come home to his own folks," said Lucey.

The boxes and the reconditioning of the Coolidge home here are not the only foundation for his hopes. Lucey recently saw Coolidge in Washington.

SHE REMEMBERED THEM
"And all he talked about was his old Northampton friends," she remarked, "and he said, 'I've been in town—hadn't I gotten a soul. If he had, Mrs. Coolidge remembered them. And she laughed about how when she was teaching there, before she was married, she used to walk down the hill past my shop, and leave her shoes to be fixed—that was before she knew Coolidge at all. And I swear, she is just as pretty and as lively as she was then.'"

"This recent visit to Washington was one of three trips Lucey has made out of his native city. It was the high spot in a life that has not been colorful, except for his friendship with the president. Lucey regards Coolidge as the greatest man who has ever lived. And Lucey's white-haired companions regard Lucey with a not unflattering awe, because of his associations with greatness. Lucey asks no further favors from fate.

"I've wanted to see Coolidge—wanted to see him in his big chair ever since he was president," said Lucey. "But I didn't want to rush down as if I had an axe to grind. So I waited until he was about ready to get out. And the thing that pleased me most when I saw him was that he looked better than I ever saw him look."

"When he came in my shop once—once after he'd taken the presidential perch, I said to him, 'I'm giving you no advice about this nation, Cal, but about yourself. Don't wear yourself out on the job. I've killed some of our best men.' I guess he followed it, for he looks fine and healthy, and I can't see where he's put on a year."

Lucey stayed for lunch at the White House.

"Mrs. Coolidge had given a dinner for 78 people in the same room the night before, so the four of us that sat down were just a speck in the big room. The White House is beautiful, but not exactly homelike. I bet Mrs. Coolidge will be glad to be back in a more cozy place."

Lucey doesn't remember what they had to eat, except that they had plenty. He has an impression of shining silver and flowers, and such a succession of courses that his dessert went untouched.

HAD OFFICIAL CAR
After luncheon, Lucey found the president's car at his disposal for sightseeing. On his other two days he had an official car.

"I didn't ask the president about his plans for the future," Lucey became dignified and aloof at the very idea. "I've known him now for 36 years—too long and too well to ask about his own affairs. He's quiet, and he's careful, and he isn't always having to take back what he says. That's why he is where he is today. He was sensible, always. When the other young bloods around here were talking about what they were going to do, he was keeping quiet and doing things."

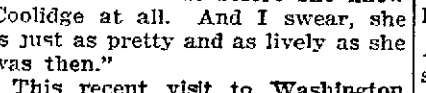

The town will be mighty proud to have him back. Mrs. Coolidge will be glad to be where she can see her mother often and look after her. She's been in the hospital here, you know for more than a year."

FEW SHOES TO MEND
In Lucey's shop are autographed pictures of Coolidge, the framed letter in which he credits Lucey with a part in his success, and pictures of the home folks saying goodbye to Coolidge when he went to Washington. "That's me," right beside him," Lucey points out eagerly.

Lucey is 59 years older than the president, and admits he is getting on in years though he feels as fit as ever. If business is slack now, and rubbers keep sales and heels from needing repair work, he doesn't mind because it gives him more time to discuss weighty matters with the old customers that drop in for a talk instead of a half-shoe.

Knows Cal Better Than Any Man

Business is a little slack just now for James Lucey, Northampton, Mass., shoemaker, but he's happy because Calvin Coolidge, for 36 years a protegee of his, is coming back to live in the old home town. Upper right is the Coolidge home in Northampton to which the president and his wife already are sending some of their furnishings.

Take Drastic Steps To Solve Traffic Problem

New York — Traffic-minded New Yorkers are taking drastic steps to solve the traffic problem. The problem is as unique as Times square and surrounding territory where it exists. To visualize it, picture an area six blocks wide and eight long, through which Broadway cuts a brilliant path.

Into this area between 8 and 9 o'clock nightly are poured more than 5,000 taxicabs and 6,000 private cars. On the sidewalks during the same period are 35,000 to 100,000 humans, the number depending on the day of the week and the weather.

The magnet that pulls this mass together is, of course, amusement. For here are more than 60 theaters with seats of 160,000. And their neighbors are mostly restaurants, supper clubs and hotels.

MOTORISTS GET BREAK
In most cities the major worry of those who ride is finding a place at the curb to park. When you want to move, you can. Here, however, travel has been even more discouraging to the gas and oil consumers. Bumper to bumper jams were the usual thing until Police Commissioner Whalen stepped in with his no-parking, no-turn, no-jaywalking plan for Broadway and its environs during the peak hour of theater traffic.

The transformation at the start was really very bewildering to the old timers. Taxis sometimes used to crawl, but three cab lengths before the red light stopped them. Imagine

GOOD WILL TOUR INTERESTS SOUTH

Jacksonville Official Writes to Tour Manager at Wausau

Wausau, Wis.—Southern states are interested in the Wisconsin Good Will tour train which will start from Madison and Milwaukee for the south and east February 25, for an 11-day journey. Washington, D. C., is scheduled for Inauguration Day, March 4.

Mayor John T. Alsop of Jacksonville, Fla., has written Lee I. Yorkson, Wausau, manager of the train this year, expressing cordial appreciation of the honor to be given Jacksonville in the forthcoming visit to that city. R. K. Christenberry, Jacksonville convention secretary of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce also wrote Mr. Yorkson, extending greetings and assuring the Wisconsin train members a cordial reception at Jacksonville. The superintendent of schools would be delighted to visit the train and see the exhibits of Wisconsin products.

Mayor Alsop told of the 40-day journey of the Florida Good Will train last year and its reception at New York City, where the train was allowed to stop at the foot of Broadway, on the battery for four days where it was visited by 250,000 people.

Manager Yorkson emphasizes the fact that the Good Will train is intended to show the easterners and southerners the manufacturing, farming and dairying resources of Wisconsin and of its splendid attractions to both summer and winter tourists.

ANNOUNCE JUDGES IN ANOTHER ESSAY CONTEST

Waukesha—(P)—Judges in the Wisconsin competition of the John Hays Hammond essay contest were announced Saturday by Mrs. Henry M. Tompkins, Waukesha, chairman of the department of education of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Tompkins has named Mrs. C. O. Olson, Milwaukee, chairman; Mrs. A. O'Shea, Madison, and Dr. W. A. Gamble, Waukesha, to select winners in a competition for high school pupils and college and university students on "Why I Should Vote."

National prizes will be awarded $250 for first, $150 for second, and $100 for third in each class by the National Federation of the American People, a national organization offered by Mr. Hays Hammond, chairman of the department of education of the National Civic Federation.

LOCAL RAIL MEN TO ATTEND FONDY MEET

Arrange Special Program for Railroad Safety Conference

It is expected 20 local employees of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company and their wives will attend a Safety meeting at the Calumet hotel, Fond du Lac next Friday, according to W. E. Basing, local agent. The opening session will be held at 1:30 in the afternoon and is for railroad officers, agents, yardmaster, foreman, warehouse men, assistant foreman, and others.

Frank Winter, Chicago, general claim agent of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company will be the principal speaker at the afternoon session. A special program of entertainment is being arranged by the committee in charge. A feature motion picture will be shown at the Rex theatre at 7:30 Friday evening, followed by a social hour.

ORGANIZE RELIGIOUS COURSE AT Y. M. C. A.
Dr. J. R. Denyes, professor of religious work at Lawrence college, will conduct a course of study on the life of Christ for the employed staff of the Y. M. C. A. and other interested men of the city Friday mornings at the association building. The first class is to be held next Friday morning.

The sidewalks, however, allow for no such swiftness. The need for personal bumpers, fenders and fenders, is as urgent as herebefore, especially at crossings where Whalen's cops hold back impatient pedestrians until the "go" signal starts the throng slow-mo-tioning again.

No turns, right or left, being permitted during the busiest hours of the night, some of the carriage trade must walk a half-block or more to the theater, or else take a roundabout route.

One high hat-donning cloak couple had to hike two blocks through slush on a recent snowy night. For a block they found fun in the novelty of using their own motive equipment, but soon their feet, and spirits, were dampened.

"I can't say I think a lot of this," the girl exclaimed when finally they reached a protecting marquee.

But Commissioner Whalen, Mayor Walker and the show producers think it's great, and that the public when educated by the police, will like it, too.

DOCTORS SHOW HUNDREDS HERE QUICKEST WAY TO END COLDS

Relief Begins Instantly—Then Cold Quickly Disappears When Treated at Home New Way

Endorsed in Reports of Doctors As Ideal Home Treatment For Head Cold, Cough, Chest Cold

Neglecting colds at this time of year is sure to cause needless misery and may risk pneumonia. So doctors are now advising home use of a pleasant hospital treatment that gives almost instant relief—then quickly drives the cold out of one's system.

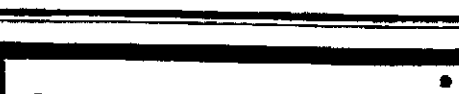

"Feverish," "Grippy" Feeling Soon Gone
The quick relief which came to D. H. Cunard is typical of the splendid results obtained in number of Appleton homes.

Mr. Cunard had a severe chest cold which caused acute thoracic pains. Examination by a physician showed a pulse of 86, respiration 20, and temperature 100 degrees.

The doctor then advised double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral—a hospital certified medication of wild cherry, terpin-hydrate, etc., to help reduce fever, clear up congestion and drive the cold out of his system.

The comforting, healing warmth gave him almost instant relief. That night the "feverish," "grippy" feeling had almost entirely disappeared and congestion was clearing rapidly—and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no trace left of the cold.

Pleasant To Use—Ended Child's Cold
The six year old daughter of Mrs. R. L. Maguire contracted a severe head cold which started spreading so fast it was necessary to call the doctor. On his advice, then, she gave double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral every half hour until congestion was relieved. She was up and about in two hours. By supper time the child felt lots better and ate heartily for the first time in several days. That night she was able to sleep without

ASSEMBLYMAN GETS LEAVE OF ABSENCE TO FIND HIS TEETH

But Grant-co Lawyer Doesn't Think Much of Legislative Rule

Madison—(P)—Governor Kohler's lawyer, or under his official title, the executive counsel, E. L. Wingert, Madison, spent the morning Friday learning the recording systems and other details of the governor's office which he will use in legal matters pertaining to the chief administrator's work.

Lee D. Eastman, Grant-co assemblyman isn't especially fond of the rule requiring a reason for asking leave of absence from the legislature.

He called one of his friends in the lower house before the last day session this week, and informed the friend that he would be over as soon as possible, having lost his teeth. It was necessary that he be excused from the session or recorded as absent so when the friend arose to ask leave for Eastman, and had to give a reason for asking it, he frankly gave the reason. Speaker Perry asked the assembly if there was any objection to leave of absence for the gentleman from Grant until he finds his teeth.

There was none.

The old battle over women's rights to hold positions in the state legislature may soon be settled by Judge A. C. Hoppmann, of the Dane-co circuit court. Belle Horton Ruppel, Milwaukee attorney who represents Mable D. Holt, Madison, plaintiff in the action and Suel O. Arnold, of the attorney general's staff have mutually admitted to the judge that all facts in the case are as stated and that they are ready to accept his decision on the law. The question is whether the women's rights law of 1921 outlawed the statute then on the law books prohibiting employment of women stenographers, clerks and assistants.

The Capital city lost its big chance to have some of its streets cleaned by equipment owners here for the eighteenth annual road school. The huge plows, pulled backed and went forward—all in the same place—throughout all the week while the operator failed almost totally to take the hints handed them about the amount of snow on the streets around town. One small plow finally made a loop around the capitol and cleaned about a quarter of the sidewalks.

INFORMATION BUREAU ANSWERS 753 CALLS

There were 753 calls answered at the merchants' information bureau in January, according to the record of Miss Florence Becker, in charge of the bureau. While many of the calls were to ascertain residence of persons and changes in residence a majority of the calls were to learn credit ratings about 50 per cent of the calls answered showed credit ratings to be good.

POSTMASTER URGES WIDER AIR MAIL USE

F. F. Wetzel, acting postmaster, Saturday urged Appleton postal patrons not to forget that daily air mail service is available. He pointed out that the line will be kept in operation only as long as there is a need for it. The postage on matter sent by air is 3 cents for the first ounce, only 3 cents more than by regular mail, Mr. Wetzel said. He said that the air mail plane operates seven days a week thereby giving business men an added advantage by allowing them to save time over the weekend.

CUPID DIDN'T WORK SO HARD LAST MONTH

Four less marriage licenses were issued during January, 1929, than in the same month in 1928, according to records at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk. There were only 16 licenses issued last month as compared with 20 in January, 1928. Mr. Hantschel says he doesn't know whether the fact that 1928 was Leap Year, made any difference, but it is significant, he pointed out, that the total number of licenses issued in 1928 was way ahead of the number issued the previous year.

Bed-Ridden Boy Finally Meets His "Signal Man" And Becomes Happy

Monroeville, O.—Shortly before midnight on every other night of the year the giant locomotive that hauls a certain New York Central railroad flyer toward Toledo from the east gives four sharp, staccato barks with its whistle as it roars through Monroeville—and an electric light in a bedroom window of a house beside the tracks blinks four times in reply.

Engineer J. J. Loucks, pilot of the flyer, is exchanging greetings with his friend Clayton A. Lord, an 18-year-old invalid.

The engineer and the sick boy never saw one another until just a few days ago. But they've been exchanging greetings for a year, now—every other night, regular as clockwork.

There's a story back of it, of course; the kind of story perhaps that O. Henry would have liked here it is.

Engineer Loucks, who lives in Cleveland, takes the flyer to Toledo at night and brings another one back the next morning. One morning a year ago, as his train sped into Monroeville, he saw a boy sleeping on a cot on the sun porch of a house near the tracks.

When the train stopped at the Monroe station, Loucks got down from the cab and asked the station master about the boy.

"That boy?" said the station master. "H'm, you must see Clayton Lord. Poor kid, he's been sick in bed for a long time. Something wrong with his lungs. Shame, too, for he's a nice kid."

The next night, as Loucks took his train speeding through Monroeville, he pulled the whistle four times as he passed the boy's house. There is no other railroad whistle signal just like that, and he hoped the boy would understand.

So, on his next night run, Loucks did it again. This time the light in the sick boy's bedroom window blinked four times. Loucks yanked the whistle cord four times more, to show he understood, and went on, grinning.

That started it. Every time Loucks passed the house after that he would give the signal. And every time the boy's light would blink four times.

Time passes rather slowly for an 18-year-old boy who is too sick to get out of bed. Any little thing that breaks the monotony of the endless hours of lying flat on your back is mighty welcome. So Clayton Lord quickly grew to look on the unknown engineer as one of his very best friends.

Now and then there would be nights when the boy wasn't feeling quite as well as usual—nights when he would have to drop off to sleep early in the evening. On those nights Clayton would always set his alarm clock for the hour when Loucks' train was due. He'd wake up when it went off, wait until he heard the whistle, and then blink his light.

On Christmas night train service was delayed. Loucks' train was two hours late. Clayton stayed awake as long as he could, but finally he fell asleep. But when the train finally roared by and the whistle barked four times in the still night, the boy mechanically, in his sleep, reached for the light cord and gave the reply.

The next day he got a Christmas gift of a necktie from the engineer.

"Gee," he told his mother, "I wish I could find out who that engineer is."

"Perhaps you will, some day," said his mother. "But that engineer's a busy man, Clayton, and he can't stop in Monroeville."

It happened, however, that a newspaper reporter on the Toledo News-Bee heard about the strange friendship. So one day he strolled down to the Toledo Union Station, sought out Engineer Loucks and told him about it.

The next day was Louck's day off. The engineer dressed up in his street clothes, got in a passenger car—he didn't often travel that way—and rode to Monroeville. There he went straight to the Lord house and introduced himself to Clayton's mother.

She was excited as a school girl. "Shhh—come with me," she said. "Clayton's asleep."

Together, they tiptoed into the bedroom. Loucks walked to the bedside and laid a hand on the lad's shoulder. The boy stirred, opened his eyes, and looked up.

"Well, my boy," said Loucks, "how do you like the whistles from my train?"

Clayton sat straight up in bed. He started to say something, stopped, and blinked, and his eyes filled with mist. He put his hand on the man's arm.

"You aren't my engineer?" he asked in surprise.

Loucks nodded.

He stayed in the boy's room for an hour or more. They chatted of all kinds of things—whistles, signals, new and more elaborate codes of greeting, and so on. Finally Loucks shook hands, promised to come again, and left.

Mrs. Lord came into the room. Clayton turned to her. "Isn't he a peach?"

Mrs. Lord smiled and nodded.

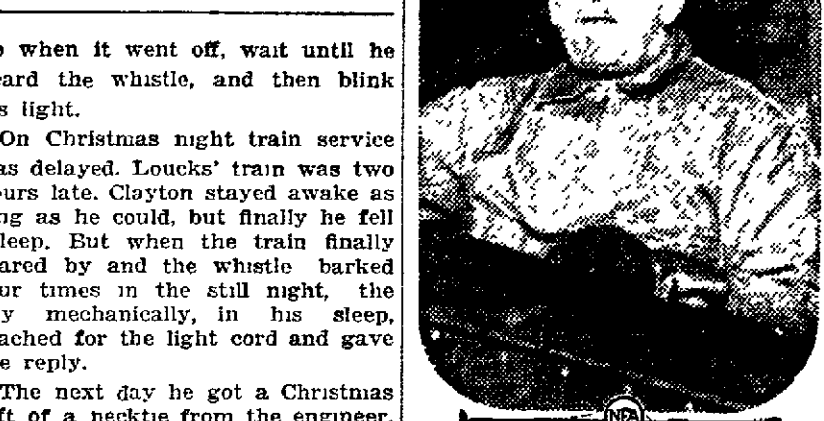

"Mr. Loucks says," she said, "that he'll tell the other engineers to whistle to you, too."

The sick boy smiled. Drowsy after the excitement, he turned over to go to sleep. As he did so he said, softly:

"That'll be great. But there'll never be any whistles like his."

The climax of the strange and kindly friendship that had endured for a year between Engineer J. J. Loucks and Clayton A. Lord, the sick boy, is shown above. Below is Engineer Loucks in his cab.

PAY HONOR TO MEMORY OF LATE ROBERT WILD

Madison—(AP)—Before the bar of the supreme court, the legal profession of Wisconsin Monday paid tribute to the memory of one of its most distinguished members, the late Robert Wild, of Milwaukee.

He was characterized as a student of ancient civilizations who yet was keenly alive to the present; as an astronomer who gazed at the stars, yet kept his eye on the world about him; as a scholar who considered the law a learned profession to be correlated with all other human knowledge.

George H. Katz, Milwaukee, read a memorial drawn by a committee of the Milwaukee-co. Bar association, of which Wild was once president. The state board of bar commissioners, of which he was once a member, was represented by Ferris White and E. J. Dempsey.

Justice F. C. Eschweiler read a memorial on behalf of the supreme court.

Robert Wild was born in Milwaukee Nov. 12, 1875. He died Oct. 9, 1928. His parents were exiled from Baden, Germany, for participation in the liberal revolutionary movement of 1848. He was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and received recognition from various German universities.

The birth rate of Scotland last year was the lowest in record.

REQUIRED MUSIC
BILL IS UP AGAIN
BEFORE ASSEMBLY

Measure Is Reintroduced by
A. J. McDowell of Soldiers
Grove

Madison — The defeated bill of the 1927 session under which music would be one of the required subjects in the schools of the state, was reintroduced in the Assembly this session by A. J. McDowell, Soldiers Grove.

Assemblyman P. E. Nelson, of Maple, put in a bill under which individuals or companies would have to post notices several days before cutting timber of their intention to cut. The notices would be placed on buildings in the timber land or on one corner of each forty acres of the land. This bill also provides that cutters would have to dispose of slashings and debris from the severance operations by some other means than fire.

Albert F. Weller, Milwaukee put in a bill for state regulation of sanitary conditions in tourist camps, summer camps and resorts, through the state health department, which, in the measure, would be given $5,000 annually for this work.

Charles D. Perry, speaker of the assembly, introduced a bill in that house which provides that the revisor of statutes, the chairman of the assembly and senate judiciary committees, the chairman of the state associations of county judges and circuit court judges, the president of the state bar association and three elective members of that association should serve in an advisory capacity to the supreme court in determining rules of pleadings, practices and procedure in all courts of the state.

Assemblyman D. F. Burnham

He did not hear him. There was a note from him on the pillow, telling her to ring for petit dejeuner and that he would have a little surprise when he returned.

(To Be Continued)
The honeymoon begins to wane. But Ashtoreth, just as she is getting a little fed up on her husband's love-making and bored with his compliments, encounters—read the next chapter and find out.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c. adv.

Waupaca county presented a bill to force townships to build roads leading to farmers' yards when highways running past farmhouses are under construction.

Assemblyman C. E. Dewey, Kenosha, introduced a bill which would forbid justices of the peace to serve as coroners except in the absence of the coroner or the coroner's inability to serve.

France has a shortage of farm laborers, although 950,000 foreigners have been imported for farm work in the last 11 years. Farm laborers of both sexes are now coming from Poland, under contract, at the rate of 60,000 a year.

WAS FLAT ON HIS

—Sargon Puts Him On
Job Again—Gains 20 Pounds.

"I was down in bed flat on my back for weeks. I was on a liquid diet and I fell off until I only weighed 107 pounds. Sargon not only put me on my feet a well man, but I actually gained twenty pounds and am back at work feeling finer than I have in years said John Dieringer.

JOHN DIERINGER
inger, well known inspector for the LeRoil Gas Engine Company, Milwaukee, in one of the most remarkable endorsements ever given a proprietary machine. Mr. Dieringer lives at 873 Sixty Second Ave., West Allis, Milwaukee.

"I was told that I had auto intoxication and my condition became so bad I was ordered to the hospital immediately, but I would not consent to it. If I let anything sold it would cause a terrible burning like fire in my stomach and chest and I would almost double up with cramps. My nerves went to pieces and I was so weak and dizzy that I would sometimes have to grab hold of my chair to keep from falling when I got up.

"I had to give up my job and go to bed. My whole system seemed to be checked full of poisons. I have taken six bottles of Sargon, gained twenty pounds and am back at work feeling better than I have in years. I eat anything now and sleep like a healthy boy. I took Sargon Soft Mass Pills, too, and they are the finest thing for constipation I ever saw. They don't gripe in the least, yet do their work thoroughly. Sargon may be obtained in Appleton from Voigt's Drug Store.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR
ALUM STORAGE BIN

The bid of the Hegner Construction Co. of $1,148 for construction of an alum storage bin at the filter plant was accepted by the water commission at its meeting at the city hall Friday afternoon. This was the lowest bid submitted. Authorization of the common council to construct the bin now will be sought by the commission.

The commission decided to advertise for bids for service pipes and fittings necessary for this year. Action regarding proposals for heating the pumping station was deferred, pending a further investigation. The surplus realized from the water works is being applied in paying off the cost of the new settling basin. It was reported. A payroll totaling $1,207.98 and general vouchers amounting to $15,502.35 were authorized paid.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH ASHIE
and HOLLIS HAIT were married the other day in Boston. A quiet little wedding, in the office of MR. HARLEY HIGGINBOTTOM, an attorney who is also
justice of the peace.

Ashtoreth wore a black crepe satin, six months old, a small velvet hat, and a pointed fox scarf. The scarf was a gift from the groom (he hasn't had time yet to buy a real gift. Only a few pearls—earrings, a necklace, and an enormous ring.

Mr. Hart is a multi-millionaire, and deeply in love with his beautiful wife. Before their marriage, she was a stenographer in his employ, who played her cards well, and couldn't help being an exultant.

They are sailing for Paris on the Isle de France, leaving MAIZIE, Ashtoreth's adoring mother, in the flat in Boston, with SADIE MORTON to keep her company. Sadie, a little exciting clerk, brittle but not so dumb, had contemplated black-mailing Mr. Hart. Sadie isn't really bad. Just scheming.

Maizie can manage her all right, though, Maizie, with her vast of gold, and her big jovial soul.

Ashtoreth, by the way, is 23.
And her worshipping husband must be nearly 50—old enough, at any rate, to be her father. Before she met him, Ashtoreth was more or less in love with MONTY ENGLISH, a young rack salesman, poor as a church mouse, but charming.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XII
"Star bright, star light—first star
I've seen tonight;
I wish I may, I wish I might—
I have the wish that I wish tonight."

Ashtoreth had thrown about her head a chiffon scarf spangled with silver stars. And over her velvet dinner gown (stashed to the waist in back) a wrap that was studded with semi-precious stones, like the best brocade gown of an archbishop.

She felt like a princess in a fairy tale, who had been rather drab once upon a time. But, by virtue of being beautiful, had come at last into her own. . . . She considered the firmament . . . and touched the silver star on her low, white forehead. A trifle blazie. But none could deny that it suited her unusual beauty.

Hollis had accounts in New York at all the smartest shops. That struck Ashtoreth as a bit strange.
But then it was very convenient—and, after all, she wasn't marrying the man's past.

She bought French lingerie, and a squirrel coat. Ten pairs of shoes, and five of colored pumps, with rhinestone heels and buckles. Six hats. Seven dinner gowns (one for every night of the voyage), two evening wraps (the other was of feathers, and too fragile to wear on deck), five dozen pairs of chiffon hose. And a few sport things.

"Not too much," cautioned Hollis,
"because we don't want to travel with a lot of trunks. You can do your serious shopping in Paris."

So Ashtoreth had chosen her beautiful clothes with a little new air . . . "A dozen nightgowns will be enough, I think. And only two negligees—the scarlet one, and the green velvet. I'm going to Paris, you see, and I don't want to be burdened with luggage. It's so silly, don't you think—when one can pick up such exquisite lingerie over-there?"

It had been hot and close in the ballroom tonight. Too much smoke, and too much champagne. Besides,
Lady Mary Somebody-or-other, returning from London, via Paris, had appropriated Hollis. They were old friends, it seemed.

Ashtoreth wasn't exactly piqued.
Still, it did seem that Lady Mary might have been a little more considerate. The way she was always talking of things, and people, of which Ashtoreth knew nothing.
And there was another dreadful woman, Mrs. Humbert Worringford, who lived in one of those places you read about in the Gibbs novels, and wanted them to go shoot.

Hollis had lots of friends aboard.
The drink, innumerable aperitifs, and played innocent bridge, and chatted of books and travel, and the stock market. So that Ashtoreth had, sometimes, a suffocating feeling of being completely swamped. Cocktails made her ill, because the passage was a little rough. She couldn't play bridge
... nor deck games. And she'd had so little time to read! As for stocks, and bulls and bears, and buying on margin, and selling short —well, a girl can't know everything.

Ashtoreth was glad that Lady Mary had buck teeth. She knew if the truth were told, Lady Mary would have been glad to exchange all her erudition, and her high-hat ways, for a good set of even, white teeth, to sparkle every time she opened her mouth. . . . And Mrs.
Humbert Worringford had the biggest feet! Ashtoreth found them absurdly reassuring.

After all, society women usually are plain. Or they don't know how to dress. Or they're awfully fat, or terribly senile. Against the solidarity of the masses and their titles, and their good old families, of their assured ways, and their certain knowledge, Ashtoreth considered the back teeth of Lady Mary, the flat feet of Mrs. Humbert Worringford, and the triple chin of Miss Amy Merrill, the society poetess. They comforted her immeasurably.

When he called her "Orchid," he kind of whistled. Not really whistled, but he said it so sort of thrilling. Quite with a little quiver in his voice. Ashtoreth said he was calling her "Orchid" because he was talking about her "orchid" unconsciousness, and telling her how cool she was, and chaste, and lovely, like an orchid.

Sometimes, in the pressing dark of her cabin, she thought of Monty.
And all his rough, young ways.
And his merry slang. And the way he used to tell her truths about himself. And she wondered if Monty would laugh, if he could hear Hollis saying such beautiful things.

Monty had told her something once, about getting married.
"You'll get married for one of two things, Ash," he said. "Love or money. You won't be like all the rest of the women. Half the girls I know got a bug on getting married.
Not because they love a man! But because they'd like a little place of their own. Or they're lonesome, and they want company. Maybe it's just a meat ticket they're grabbing.
Or they don't want to be old maids.
Some of them do it so's they can have kids. There's reasons enough, decent and respectable and all that.
But it's not love—and it's not just money."

"Now, you're different, Ash. I'll be love or money with you. And nothing else but."

Love or Money . . . Well, I did, didn't I? thought Ashtoreth to herself. . . . Money for love, I mean, she added hastily.

She had left Hollis in the ballroom and slipped out during a brief moment when nobody was paying any particular attention to her. Now she leaned over the rail and drew her glittering cloak about her.

There was somebody standing in a little corner that was full of shadows.
Ashtoreth had not seen him, but she felt him, standing there. He had seen her, of course, in the light of the open door, clothed in black and silver, with a star on her forehead and a gleaming wrap to warm her.

Probably he was lonely and would like to talk to somebody . . . Why not? Hollis was dancing with Lady Mary, wasn't he? And not caring a bit what became of her.

She leaned over the railing and addressed herself to the heavens.
"Star bright, star light—first star
I've seen tonight, I wish I may, I wish I might—have the wish that I wish tonight."

She turned her profile toward the dark corner and clasped her hands against her throat, shivering slightly and drawing her cloak closer. Hollis said that her hands made him think of calla lilies. As for her profile, she knew that was perfect. . . . She sighed softly.

Then out of the shadows stepped a familiar figure . . . And that moment the door opened, framing Hollis, his hands thrust in the pockets of his dinner coat.

Ashtoreth knew he was looking for her, but she pretended, for a moment, to be lost in contemplation of the wintry sea. The stranger stepped back, filling the corner filled already with darkness.

"Orchid!" cried Hollis, and joined her at the rail. "My dear, you'll catch cold!"

He covered her hands with his, chafing them warmly. "Silly little girl—it's frigid as Greenland's icy mountains out here."

"I didn't know you'd miss me," she

THE "PULL" IN OUR SCHOOLS
School enrollment has been skyrocketing in recent years. During the fifteen-year period ending 1925 public school enrollment has increased 38 per cent while in the high school department the increase has been 300 per cent.

Several agencies might be mentioned as influencing this increase, such as the modernized courses of study as organized by school officials, the modern school plants with their pleasing environment, the advisory or personal organization of the teaching force who hold intimate contact with each school child. But the greater factor has been the "pulling" power of the teacher and superintendent.

This latter is the test that accurately gauges the talent of the school executive and the teaching force. This is the proving ground for the magnetism whose persistent pull brings back the youth year after year, following the cooling process of the summer vacation. This is what is meant by "The Pull" in Our Schools, the teacher who fascinates the pupils into eager response, inspires in them the zeal of accomplishment and holds and controls them through force of personality; the school administrator who knows how to treasure teaching talent and give it effective guidance and support.

There is more to a teacher than a mere background of educational training. An examination of application blanks used by superintendents will show concern for character, tact, patience, optimism, enthusiasm, professional attitude and personality. These must be as marked as the ability to impart knowledge.

Teachers meeting these qualifications are happy in the school room atmosphere and themselves radiate cheer, buoyancy and inspiration. They promote the child's individuality, encourage initiative and self-expression. They do not impart dead facts but living ideals; they unfold life for the child's sake, spread courage, happiness, companionship. They know no sarcasm, show no partiality, play no favorites and are quick to recognize pupil effort as well as accomplishment. They think less of their present task than of the future outcome; they look upon their labor not for self but as a community service.

Pupils are thus led to participate through interest and not compulsion. They are stimulated through an enthusiasm that is contagious. They become bound to the teacher's engaging personality. They reach the closing of the school day not with a feeling of relief, but with a zest for the opening of tomorrow.

This is the "pull" that has been a prime factor in creating a new school interest. It is the quality in the teaching force that the superintendent looks for and develops: it is the only "pull" a superintendent desires.

CANADIAN TRADE
A Canadian Pacific bulletin takes pardonable satisfaction in the expansion of the Dominion's foreign trade. For 12 months ending last September it reached the respectable total of $2,504,000,000, with a balance of $140,000,000 of exports over imports.

Who are the other parties to all this trading? Chiefly the United States and Great Britain. They get all but $300,000,000 of it. And who comes first? Uncle Sam has that distinction. Recently won from John Bull. Canada now sells the United States a little more than she sells the United Kingdom, and buys from the United States more than four times as much as she buys from the United Kingdom.

Geography is more important, apparently, than patriotism. A neighbor gets more of Canada's buying patronage than the mother-land gets. It isn't all mere propinquity and neighborliness, however. The United States, rather than England, now produces most of the things Canada needs. Economically speaking, national boundaries grow less and less important. North America today is pretty nearly a business unit.

A "HUMAN" LIFE
A junior in Dartmouth College has left school and started for the northern wilderness to lead a "human" life. He explains, in a letter to the college paper, that he seeks "a higher life than the college leads to."

"I have existed in your civilization now," he says, "for 20 years. I have existed merely as a spectator. You (meaning society) have forced me to do certain things, and I have done them—reluctantly, always inwardly rebelling. Now I have decided to give expression to my wild nature, and to try whether it be possible to live humanly. You will see the price you pay by looking around in any lecture room. Professors—pale-faced, eyes glazed, truly hopeless; students—dull, tired, yawning, chafing at the system they are entangled in."

Well, maybe the young man is going after something better. Maybe he will find it. Maybe! His ideal, he explains, is that of Thoreau, the American naturalist. It has appealed to many besides the rebellious Thoreau, and still does. But alas! The world fills up so rapidly that most of us would have to go far to find a Walden Pond and complete solitude and independence. Soon the wilderness will be filled with settlers or campers. Besides, human relations somehow are always clamoring for recognition.

What is natural life? There is external nature and human nature. Doubtless mankind lived long ages in a state of wild nature, during which time were formed bonds that still pull us back to mountain, forest and river. But civilization began when men flocked together in tribes, towns and cities. Man's higher development has come in a human environment. Some solitude is still needed for rest and self-communion. But real progress, real development, is made with other people in the give and take, the combat and cooperation, of family and social life.

THE MIGHTY HAVE FALLEN
There was a terrible do-in Doorn the other day, at an important dinner given by (former) Emperor Wilhelm. Newspaper correspondents who ventured to approach the sacred precincts of Doorn Castle were rounded up and shooed off, barely escaping decapitation. Still the vital news leaked out. The (self-titled) Empress Hermine suddenly developed a high fever and went to bed very ill. The kaiser had invited the Crown Princess Cecilie, who always makes the empress sick, because she claims to be rightful successor to the social precedence of the late empress, and treats the post-war empress as an upstart. Poor Wilhelm, attired in glittering gold-braid and a chestful of medals and the usual clanking saber, did the honors as best he could. It's terrible when one's women-folk can't get along together. The menu of that dinner, reported by the perfidious correspondents, is intriguing, as it were. It consisted of "sole, pheasant, strawberry ice cream and fruit." And imperial power has come to this! Surely a potentate of Wilhelm's ancestry and traditions, though in exile, should dine on nothing less than a roast wild boar, served whole with all the trimmings, and barrels of ale and Rhein wine to wash it down.

Strawberry ice cream! And probably angel cake with it. The All-Highest War Lord is fallen indeed.

BOOSTING AVIATION
The International League of Aviators has been awarding air trophies to the leading flyers for achievements in 1928. The title of world's best aviator went to an Italian, Col. Ferrarin, for his endurance records and for his continuous 4,417 mile flight from Rome to Natal, Brazil. Capt. Kingsford-Smith of Southern Cross fame, Carl B. Eielson, who flew in the Arctic with Wilkins—and has recently been flying in the Antarctic—Koehl, who piloted the Bremen from Germany to North America, and Costes and Lebrun, the two Frenchmen who flew around the world, all came in for special trophies. It is an evidence of the tremendous advance of aviation in all lands that there should be so many world-famed names on the honor list.

POST-TONIC
The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady
Brown was called to the police court to receive a reward for recouling a drowning woman. "I am pleased to pin this medal to your breast," said the magistrate, "and also to lodge $25 to your credit in the bank as an acknowledgment of your great bravery."
Brown showed some little embarrassment, and then said, "If it's all the same to you, sir, I'd rather you'd pin the $25 to my breast and lodge the medal in the bank."

A Negro cook answered the telephone the other morning, and a cheerful voice inquired: "What number is this?"
The cook, in no mood for trifling questions, said with some asperity: "You-all ought to know. You done called it."

TRUE—TOO TRUE
A well known author was being put through a searching interrogation by a rather garrulous acquaintance.
Don't you ever feel that eventually a day will come when you have written yourself out? continued the persecutor. "Have you ever thought that, when that happens, you will have to find another means of earning your living?"
The author was at a loss for a minute or two. "But, my dear lady," he said, "such an idea is fallacious. In your own case you have been talking for years and haven't talked yourself out have you?"

A Scot hauled before the court for drunkenness gave as his excuse that he had traveled from Glasgow in had company.
"What sort of company?" asked the magistrate.
"A lot of teetotallers," was the startling response.
"What sir," said the magistrate, "do you mean to say that abstainers are bad company? I think they are the best company for such as you."
"Beggin' your pardon," answered the Scot, "ye're wrang sir, for I had a hale mitchin of whuskey, an' I had to drink it by myself."

Mr. Meyster—Certainly, my dear. About how little?

Did that young man kiss you last night?
Mother, do you suppose he came all the way up here just to hear me sing?

"Good afternoon, professor, and how are you?"

"Three times, madam," said the guide gravely. "Any more than that would spoil his temper."

THE EXPOSURE YOU REMEMBER
A photograph published, I am afraid, in our favorite newspaper, showed just how the king felt ill. In the picture King George stands with a barred head in bitter cold—we have the printed assurance about this—while five other men, who stood bare, on last Armistice day, paying a tribute to the "Unknown" dead British soldier. This, the world's most medium of truth and enlightenment points out, was the king's costly devotion to duty.
Very well. But I believe the king is a real man and even the duty did not demand it. I am certain he never would have kept his hat on when everybody else was taking the dire risk involved in uncovering the head, on a cold day, for a few minutes.
The picture presents some other interesting features. Not that I wish to raise a controversy with the towering intellect that penned the message above quoted. I merely desire a bit of attention to the fact that apparently King George still has his hair on, or at least a moderate thatch that looks like hair, whereas at least two of the other figures in the group really did have bare heads and no mistake. If we are to follow the thought of the man who offered the evidence we must assume that these two men with absolutely unprotected domes took greater chances than the king did. But let that go. No need to split hairs in a common sense discussion.
Now I beg to ask a mere rhetorical question—that is, a question for which I not only expect no answer, but I know darn well there will be no answer. My question is this: How come only King George suffered ill consequences of the exposure, then, as the evidence before us shows, at least five other men, and I have no doubt at least 5,000 other men, around him, underwent the same ordeal at the same time?
This is an eminent instance. I think, of a peculiar bent in popular psychology. Even the 5,000 men stood with heads bare at the same time the king did, and only the king fell ill shortly afterward, people obstinately close their eyes and minds to all sense and reason and assume that the king's "resistance" was lowered somehow by conditions or circumstances that had no ill effects on anybody else.
You and I and everybody who really lives must inevitably encounter just such "exposure" if you insist on calling it that—many times a day. Why do we so readily forget the thousand "exposures" and so readily recall the one exposure that happens to be fresh in mind when we happen to fall ill?
I give credit for this strange bent in popular psychology to our moss-baked, purblind, unscientific and unprogressive public health authorities who still teach, too, of course they do not know and cannot prove by experiment, that just such trifling "exposures" make one more susceptible to respiratory infections.
Once more I would publicly remind the health department and the man in the street that we have no ground, no evidence, on which to base the belief or teaching that anything "lowers resistance." If we keep within the bounds of knowledge and truth we can say only that certain factors seem to impede or prevent the development of the highest degree of immunity, and, moreover, once one has acquired any degree of immunity no trifling misfortune will rob him of it.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—Offhand one would think the signing by the president of a treaty that purports to abolish war throughout the world would be an occasion where dignity and solemnity hold full sway.
It is exceedingly difficult to create an atmosphere in keeping with the importance of an occasion these days when movie cameramen and "still" photographers grind and click away at a scene bathed in a painful calcium light.
This was the setting when the president signed the Kellogg pact.
A LITTLE MORE DELAY
Much was written and said about the way the Kellogg pact was delayed in the senate. It is not generally known, however, that it was also held up at the White House—for a few moments.
The president was seated with gold and silver medals on his chest, the battery of cameras just as the mass of pen moved downward in the handle of the chief executive's voice cried out:
"Just a minute, Mr. President. Just a minute, please!"
It was a movie photographer who had not quite focused his camera in the proper manner. Mr. Coolidge said: "I will be sure next time." Odd, isn't it?—a great state document being held up until a photographer is ready?

Adventures In The Library
By Arnold Mulder
A GAY AUTOBIOGRAPHY
Madame Schumann-Heink is revealed as not only a very great singer but as a great personality in a recent book in which the story of her life is told in the first person. It is called "Schumann-Heink, the Last of the Titans."
The great singer had the good sense not to try to write her autobiography. She did the same thing that Henry Ford did when he told the story of his life to a trained writer and let him dress it up. Schumann-Heink is not a writer and she has the good sense to know it. So she told her story to Mary Lorton, who has written it for the public, retaining the first person in the narrative, much in the manner in which a good reporter presents an interview to his readers, although the question and answer method is not directly employed. It is almost implied however the reader constantly feels the atmosphere of the interview—as if Schumann-Heink is informally talking over the events in her life with a friend.
That makes it an unusually gay autobiography. It is wholly free from the deadly solemnity that clings to some autobiographies. Schumann-Heink takes herself with reasonable seriousness as an artist, as she has a right to do. She knows she is a great singer and she never hesitates to refer frankly to her successes. There is no false humility about her. But she does not take herself solemnly as a human being. She has a sense of humor about herself and is as ready to tell a good story that counts against her as one that is in her favor.
She is constantly referring to her homeliness. Whatever she may have been as a young girl, personally I do not think she is homely now in her maturity. Probably I am great "thoughts that have sung themselves through her life from the musical classics have created a mature beauty for her in later life. But the point is that she never hesitates to admit that she was homely. She is gay about it and accepts it as any whole-some person would.
The whole story is like that. It is the story of a person who was not merely an artist but a human being. There was almost nothing of the famous artistic temperament about her, at least not as revealed in this one. She had the much of a sense of humor that and that was a bonus for her.
She often made a fool of herself just as ordinary people do and in much the same way. And she frankly admits it in her book. She does not claim to have been always wise. A significant point about her is her physical vitality. She appears to have been as strong as a horse during her great singing years. This probably had a great deal to do with her success. Probably without it she could not have stood the strain. She was the mother of seven children. This is a curious fact to emphasize about a great artist. What can children have to do with genius? Nothing perhaps, and yet Anatole France had the notion that fecundity and genius are related.

As usual in the case of an artist, the early years are the most dramatic. She was so poor that she had to save the fat that dripped on top of her soup to use as spread for her black bread, and at one time she was so discouraged that she tells us she was on her way to the railway track with her small children to commit suicide.
But after a long struggle success came. It was when she came to America that real money first came to her. From then on it was one long triumph and she was a world figure. Again and again she expresses her gratitude to and love for America.
Later came tragedy again when one son, who lived in Germany till he was 21 and who was hence a German citizen fought for Germany in the World War and lost his life and her other sons all fought for the Allies. It was a terrible position for a mother but she survived it and it did not embitter her.
A gay and touching and highly fascinating autobiography

How To Play Bridge

BY Milton C. Work

In Auction Bridge there is nothing about the discarding that a De-cleat of any ability finds difficult. He can see which cards he can part with most advantageously and he does not have to show Dummy which suit to lead; but in the play of the adversaries, discarding is informative and important because it indicates which suit the partner is to lead.

Various complicated systems of discarding have been used, such as the "rotary," the "odd and even," and "always discard from strength," but all have been rejected by experts. The inexperienced player should not permit himself to be bothered by them, but should use the weakness discard which meets every possible requirement.

Using the weakness discard, a discard says, "I am weak in this suit, please do not lead it unless I discard an unnecessarily high card." Ordinarily the lowest card in hand of the suit is discarded; for example, discarding from 8-5-2, the Deuce would

CHURCH GROUP TO CELEBRATE ITS FOUNDING

A special program to commemorate the founding of the Christian Endeavor movement will be presented by the Congregational church society next Sunday evening, according to plans made at the meeting Sunday night. Details of the program must still be worked out.

The discussion at the Sunday meeting hinged around "How much freedom should young people want?" It was brought out that freedom should be an expression of inward control rather than outward desire; that rather than doing what a person wishes to do, freedom should be expressed by doing what ought to be done. Parental decisions should be accepted as logical guidance, it was said, because parents should know better than young persons and their decisions are more mature.

The society also discussed plans for a sleigh ride party to be held at 7:30 Friday evening. The date is tentative, however, and definite announcement will be made later.

SENIOR BRANCH SPONSORS TALK

Life With An Ideal is the topic of a lecture to be given by the Rev. E. Krause of Sheboygan in Mount Olive church parlors at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The lecture is being presented under auspices of the Senior Olive branch Walther league and members of the St. Paul and St. Matthew Young People's societies have been invited.

A social hour will follow the lecture and a special program of music and other entertainment is being arranged by the committee in charge. The new Mount Olive church orchestra will furnish music. Refreshments are to be served.

JUNIORS PLAN FOR CONVENTION

There will be a meeting of the Junior Olive branch Walther league in the Mount Olive church parlors at 8 o'clock Monday evening. Plans for the South Wisconsin district league convention to be held here May 11 and 12 will be discussed.

Church Supper at Baptist Church, cor. Appleton and Franklin Sts., Tuesday, Feb. 5. Given by Fellowship Class. Served from 5:30 to 7:00. 50c.

CARD PARTIES

Twenty-one tables were in play at the open card party Sunday afternoon at Maenncher hall, which was the fifth of a series given by the Appleton Maenncher. Mrs. Norval Holcomb, Louis Weber, and Werner Koltzke won prizes at schafkopf. Mrs. Fred Mueller and Miss A. Knekerbocker won the prizes at dice, and slant winners were Frank Stark, Otto Dahl and Paul Sonkowsky. Refreshments were served after cards were played. The sixth of the series of parties will be given next Sunday afternoon at Maenncher hall.

Tables will be arranged for bridge, schafkopf, and children's and adults' dice at the open card party given by the choir of St. Mary church at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at Columbia hall. Lunch will be served after the cards. Mrs. Norbert Roemer and Miss Hilda Farrell are in charge of the party.

Your Question And Its Answer

By J. A. Panneck, D.C. PALMER CHIROPRACTOR

QUESTION: How will chiropractic adjustments get results in liver trouble? My doctor tells me that my liver and gall bladder are affected. Please answer in your column.--Mrs. F. S.

ANSWER: In the same way you press the electric button in the wall and see light turned on several feet from the button. When the misplaced vertebra (out of place by repeated adjustments, the human electricity or nerve force is turned on to the sick liver and at once it begins to get well. The twist in the spine pinches the nerve trunk and stops the vital force from flowing normally from brain to organ. This life force has built the organs and it is capable of keeping them well if it can express itself normally over the nervous system which consists of brain, spinal cord and nerves.

QUESTION: I am troubled with heart disease. Will chiropractic adjustments help me?--F. B. A.

ANSWER: In a majority of heart diseases, yes. The heart does its work perfectly and remains healthy and strong as long as the nerves supplying life to it are not interfered with by pressure. Chiropractic adjustments will remove that pressure.

QUESTION: How can I prevent colds?--H. B.

ANSWER: Colds are the result of lowered bodily resistance, and especially a weakened state of the membranes involved, usually nose, throat and bronchia tubes. Having colds indicates poor bodily elimination. Chiropractic adjustments, strengthens the resistance because increases function or brings about normal function to tissues which are subject to lowered resistance and at the same time promote elimination from the body. Right here I might say that the basis of diseases is pressure on nerves at the spine interfering with normal function to the organ of the body. Chiropractic adjustments restore normal function to the organ by releasing this pressure at the spine.

COLLEGE BABY CARED FOR BY SIX "MOTHERS"

Orono, Me. (AP)—George Joseph Legere has six "mothers."

Although he is only six months old, he is helping girl students at the University of Maine in their studies. By mothering him six students are getting practical training in how to take care of a baby as a part of their course in home economics.

"Jerry" follows a regular schedule under the watchful eye of his six "mothers." He has milk at 6 a. m. At 8 he is dressed and is given cod liver oil and orange juice. At 10 he eats cereal jelly besides his milk and is tucked into a carriage on the porch for a nap. At 1 p. m. he comes in for his bath, is dressed in clean clothes, has more milk and another nap on the porch.

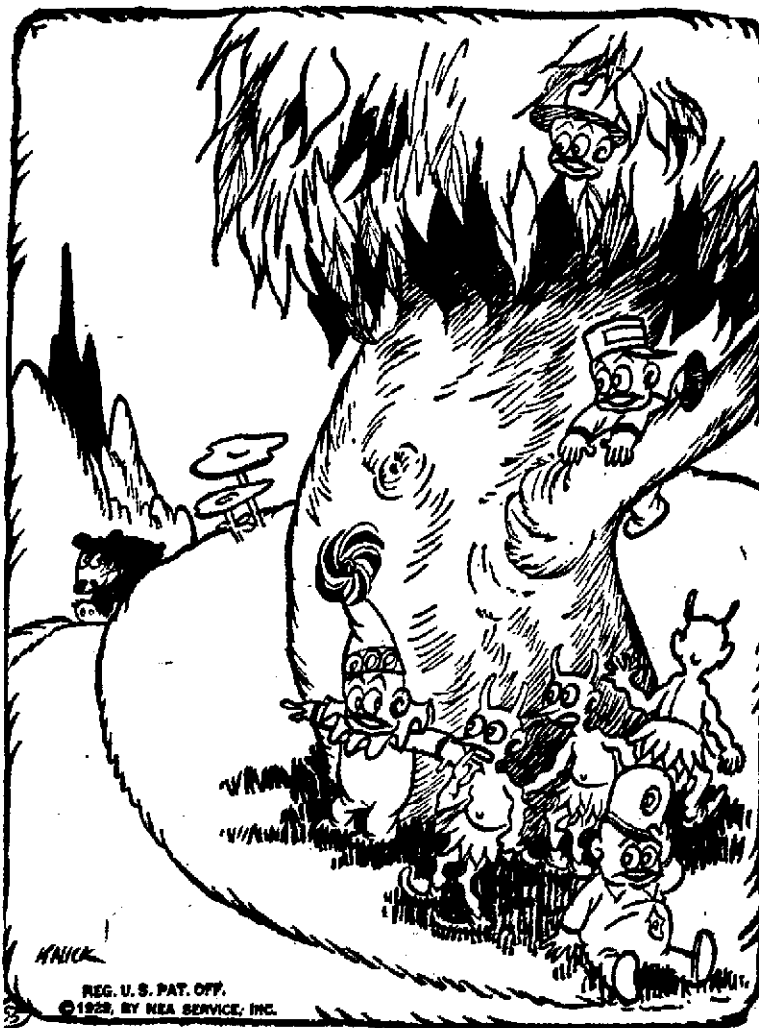

At 4 he comes into play by himself until 5 o'clock. He entertains visitors from 5 until 5:30, then is dressed for the night, has another meal of milk and cereal jelly and goes to sleep. At 10 he ends his day with another drink of milk. And so to bed.

This temporary adoption of a baby by the girls studying home economics at North Hall has become a regular and successful practice at the University of Maine. Every year a baby is obtained as part of the equipment. Every youngster who has come to North Hall for his six months' period later has been adopted.

How well they have thrived is revealed by the fact that one of them recently won the blue ribbon at a Bangor baby show.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE whole bunch tumbled down the hill, and Scouty cried, "Wow, what a spill. How are we ever going to stop? This hill is pretty steep. I've turned a somersault or two, and now I don't know what to do. I guess we'll just keep rolling. It will do no good to weep."

Clovery cried, "A bush whisked by right by my side. I wish I'd grabbed it good and tight. I'd then be safe and sound." However, nothing else came near. The path ahead looked very clear. Said Coppy, "We won't sleep until we reach the level ground."

And then a Trouble Tot chirped out, "Say, just what is this all about? I don't care much for tumbling, and my limbs are getting sore. Won't someone call this to a halt? I'll bet this is your 'Tinies' fault." Just then they knew a stream was near. They heard the water roar.

"Hurrah!" cried Coppy, "I can see that we will very shortly be all through with hillside falling. There's the bottom of the hill." And he was right. Their tumbling race stopped when they reached the level place. The Tinies and the Trouble Tot sat panting, very still.

"Oh, my, I'm glad to rest," said one. "That really wasn't any fun. I'll bet we fell a mile or so. At least it seemed that far. But all of that is over now. And we've survived the shock somehow. This place we're resting in is strange. I wonder where we are."

Before a soul could say a word, a very funny sound was heard. It frightened everybody as it echoed through the air. Then Clovery shouted, "Mercy me, we'd all best hide behind a tree. A big black thing is coming, and it looks just like a bear. (The bunch catch the bear in the next story.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Mock sausages, creamed celery, new onions and radishes, rye bread, apricot bavarian cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Fresh shoulder of pork stuffed and roasted, corn custard, jelly cranberries and apples, milk, coffee.

The butcher should remove the bone from the pork shoulder in such a way that a deep pocket is made. Fill with a well-seasoned bread or chestnut stuffing, sew gash securely and roast as usual.

MOCK SAUSAGES—One-half cup dried lima beans, 1 cup fine dried bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, milk, 1 tablespoon catsup.

Soak beans in cold water to more than cover for three hours. Drain and cook in boiling water to which 1-4 teaspoon soda has been added. Cook ten minutes and drain. Rinse in cold water and return to saucepan with boiling water to cover. Simmer until tender. Drain and rub beans through a sieve. Add crumbs, catsup, melted butter, salt, pepper and egg slightly beaten. Mix well and add milk to make moist. Shape in form of frankfurters and roll in crumbs. Brush over with melted butter and bake in a hot oven until brown and crispy on the outside.

NEVER BRIBE CHILDREN TO "BE GOOD"

Never bribe a child for being good. "Be good, Johnny and I'll give you a nickel for candy." Can you imagine anything more atrocious?

"Be good! What does anyone mean by 'be good'?" Even if a parent has some clear cut notion of what he means, a child hasn't. His idea of "being good" is as nebulous as the moon on a foggy night. It might mean, "don't waken the baby," "don't sneak a penny out of your bank," "don't ask questions when I'm busy," "don't do this, that," "Johnny isn't going to take himself to task and deliberate over what it means. He'll promise—certainly—in order to get the nickel and he hasn't the slightest idea what it's all about."

IDEA IS ALL WRONG

But suppose you say, "Don't waken the baby and I'll give you a nickel." There Johnny has a definite idea, of course. He at least knows what he's being paid for. Even so, the idea is all wrong.

If you begin to pay a child for something that he should do anyway with reasonable explanation and understanding, you are simply drilling a hole in the dyke. Before you know it, trouble will come pouring in, in an avalanche you cannot stop.

Johnny will hold that bribe over you like a young blackmailer, time without end. Amen. If behaving is so difficult and unjust a thing that it has to be paid for, why then it must be a pretty hard thing indeed. Too hard for him to bother with without compensation.

He begins to look on obedience and good conduct as, not normal, but abnormal things.

When he is older, the affair very likely will change quality, but not character.

THE HABIT WILL GROW

"If you do without the new roadster, Don, I'll see that you get to Europe for three months after you graduate."

Always a bargain, a compromise. You do this and I'll do that. Johnny won't feel that virtue is it's own reward by any means.

His parents wonder why other people can say, "No, you can't have a roadster. It doesn't suit us to get it for you!" Just like that.

Well! It was because when their children were little they never said, "Be good and we'll give you a nickel."

Expert Says Housewife Puts In Long Hours

The popular suspicion that today's housewife is swinging golf clubs oftener than brooms has been explored by Miss Hildegarde Kneeland, above, a Department of Agriculture expert on home economics. Her survey of 2,000 representative homes shows that the average housemaker toils considerably over the eight-hour day, six-day week mark.

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — The nation's largest workshop, the home kitchen, is a laggard in the parade of industrial progress.

The eight-hour day, six-day week has cut almost no figure in the lives of America's 28,000,000 housewives. The beacon-light of modern efficiency has cast no revealing beams upon the work of the household.

While man works in the twentieth century, his wife still toils in the sixteenth.

So, to arms, housewives—an industrial revolution in the home is at hand!

This domestic battle cry is sounded by Miss Hildegarde Kneeland of the bureau of home economics of the Department of Agriculture, whose newly completed survey among 2,000 home-makers—including daily records of how they spent their time during a typical week—was revealed in an address before the National Housing Conference here.

THEY'RE OVERWORKED

This survey shows that at least one-third of today's housewives, who are popularly supposed to be spending more and more of their time at the bridge table and on golf links, actually are at work in their homes more than 56 hours a week; that the average housewife's working time is 51 hours; and that "twice as many are overworked as underworked."

Who is to blame?

"The house-builder," answered Miss Kneeland. "Instead of trying to educate the housewife, we should be devoting our first efforts to educating the architect."

"Most housewives must take their kitchens as they find them. And no amount of process charting and organizing of work can offset the waste of energy and time demanded by a poorly planned kitchen. The first essential of efficient production is not efficient management, but an efficient physical plant."

Miss Kneeland would organize "the scientific kitchen" into separate working surfaces for each kind of task to be done. There would be no place in her model kitchen for the "general utility" table, for instance.

EFFICIENCY—AND HOW

"Kitchen equipment should be arranged in a step-saving sequence," she said. "For the process of pre-

When she tried to give an account of her movements later, Crystal Hathaway had no clear recollection as to how, half an hour or so after she had left the home of her cousin, Bob Hathaway, she found herself standing in a queer little street of few houses, in a part of Stanton with which she was not at all familiar. She knew, vaguely, that she had boarded a street car, intending it to carry her downtown to the railroad station, but she must have been too dazed to notice the sign on the front of the car, for it had carried her into a suburb, and she had docilely stepped off when the conductor informed her curtly that she had reached the end of the line.

She staggered, with her heavy suitcase, down the mean little street toward the state highway.

She still had no plans, only a tremendous urgency to flight. If a big, dusty car, heavily laden with camping equipment, had not drawn up to the side of the road as the driver halted her, it is probable that she would have walked for miles, aimlessly, along the state highway.

"Hello, sister! Want a lift?" a blithe, nasal voice hailed her.

The docility of aimlessness made her accept. She hoisted her suitcase to the running board and the driver reached down for it.

"Twenty of room," her road host assured her cheerfully. "Just climb right in, sister. If you're real good, you can set between me and the wife. But get a promise not to flirt with me. The little woman's jealous as all get out."

Crystal responded automatically to the pleasantry, with a feebly handsy flutter of eyelashes and a quaint smile.

"Yes, ma'am!" the man was emphasizing some remark of his own. "Finest country in the world, this middle west of ours. Me and this old lady decided to see America first, as the saying goes, and what I say is—this here prosperity of ours is going to keep right on the upgrade if the Democrats don't turn Washington over to the Pope. Ain't that right, sister?"

"Yes," Crystal agreed automatically. Where was she going—and why?

"My name's Plimpton, little lady—Cyrus M. Plimpton and wife, at your service. From the Hoosier State—the garden spot of the world.

F A I R SEX IN BELGIUM SCORN
POLITICAL LIFE

Brussels (AP)—Family life and the home seem to hold a stronger appeal for Belgian women than the hurly-burly of political life.

Unlike American and British women, Belgian women haven't yet obtained full political emancipation. They cannot vote for the national senate and chamber of representatives, but if a woman is elected she can sit in either chamber, and there is one woman senator.

Belgian women are, however active in some phases of local government and there are nine women burgomasters. Five women are provincial councillors, 150 are country councillors, 9 are alderwomen and 34 are county tax collectors.

GIRLS MOST UNRULY SAYS
CHILD BUREAU

Washington (AP)—"....and when she was bad she was horrid!"

Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau of the department of labor, bears out the old nursery rhyme, with figures in her annual report. Miss Abbott says that while little boys are worse at stealing and committing acts of mischief, the little girls who run away and are ungovernable far outnumber the boys.

Of the 24,244 cases of delinquent boys reported from all over the country, more than two thirds were for stealing or mischief.

....And what might your name be, sister?"

Crystal smiled crookedly: "It might be Patricia Waterbury," she said.

"Now that's what I call a real high-tone name," Cyrus M. Plimpton applauded. "The wife here is named Aggie—a pretty name for them as likes it—eh, sister?"

"Suits me all right," Mrs. Plimpton admitted sulkily. "Running away?" she added suddenly, her pale grey eyes shooting a suspicious glance at Crystal.

"Running away?" said Crystal. "How perfectly funny! Of course I'm not running away. I—I'm going to Chicago to look for work. I—I'm a beauty parlor operator, and business is sort of dull in Stanton."

"Now that's what I call luck!" Cyrus M. Plimpton exclaimed enthusiastically. "Me and the wife thought we'd push right through to Kansas City, and we'd be glad of your company if you can stand ours. Eh, Aggie?"

NEXT: Crystal reads "The Morning Star."

Household Hints

MORE PUICE

Both lemons and oranges give more juice if heated before squeezing.

HANDY PAPERS

Keep a pile of newspapers in the kitchen, cut in half. Sheets will save much work in cleaning the stove, catching vegetable peelings, wiping burn from the bottom of the kettle or spilled food from the stove or sink.

CLEANING LEATHER

If you want to clean the children's leather wind-breakers try using one part vinegar and two parts linseed oil. Apply with a piece of old linen or woolen, rub dry and polish with another.

PRETTY TEA

Russian tea looks very pretty when served in glasses if you use slices of lemon and a spoonful of either preserved strawberries or raspberries.

SPEEDY LIME

Hot tea is good served with slices of lime instead of lemon, with each slice speared with a clove bud. Add a candied cherry as well.

NO SMELL

Cabbage is perfectly delicious, and has no smell whatsoever when cooking if you cut it in small bits and cook 12 minutes in boiling salt water, uncovered. Serve with butter. If you have never known cabbage cooked in this way you will be surprised at what a delicate dish it is.

SLICED BANANAS

Serve sliced bananas with lemon juice and powdered sugar for a change. Sprinkle a few shreds of coconut over the top.

THE SAFETY OF THE NEW FORD

SAFETY, comfort, reliability, economy, speed, acceleration, beauty—these are the features that make the new Ford such a good value. Of all, there is none more important than SAFETY.

The safety of the new Ford comes not only from its efficient brakes, but from many other factors. Among these are ease of steering and control, the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, and the sturdy, balanced construction of the car. This includes the enduring quality of mechanical parts as well as the structural strength of the body.

A particularly interesting feature of the Ford car is the manner in which electric welding has been carried forward to new usefulness through the creation and development of hundreds of special machines.

Electric welding gives simplicity and strength

This very important and increasingly valuable tool of modern manufacturing makes it possible to use one-piece units instead of several parts riveted or bolted together, with resulting gain in strength and simplicity.

Electric welding also permits the use of steel forgings instead of castings or stampings, without increase in weight or greatly increased cost.

Steel forgings are used not only in the front axle, steering gear, transmission, clutch, drive shaft and rear axle housing of the new Ford, but in the shock absorber parts, the emergency brake lever, the torque tube flange and everywhere else where great strength is required. The strength of forgings makes for unusual safety.

Another safety factor worth noting is the manner in which the new Ford holds the road at all speeds. This is due to the low center of gravity, the carefully planned balance or distribution of structural and mechanical weight, and the low ratio of unsprung weight to sprung weight. The coordinated action of the transverse springs and Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers controls exaggerated bouncing.

Beauty and utility are combined in unusual degree in the new Ford. Shown here is the Ford Coupe—an especially good car for the woman driver because it is so safe and reliable and easy to control.

All six brakes are fully enclosed

One of the outstanding features of the new Ford, of course, is its mechanical, internal-expanding six-brake system. This is unusually reliable and effective because the surfaces of all six brakes are fully enclosed. There is no possibility of water, dirt or oil interfering with brake action under any condition.

The silence of these brakes is another thing you will appreciate. Screeching and groaning have been eliminated by a special self-centering action—an exclusive Ford development which brings the entire surface of the brake shoe in uniform contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the pedal.

The value of the protection afforded by the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield of the new Ford is shown by a recent survey indicating that 65% of injuries in automobile accidents are due to flying glass. The windshield in the new Ford is so made that it will not shatter under the hardest impact. Particularly where there are women and children, it is an important safety factor.

Ease of steering and control are additional factors in the safety of the new Ford. The steering gear is what is known technically as three-quarter irreversible. This means that the bumps and jolts of the road are fully absorbed by the wheels and steering mechanism of the car and are not transmitted to the hands of the driver. A slight touch is sufficient to guide the car. Yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road.

The ease of shifting gears, quick acceleration, abundant power and speed for every emergency, and full vision front, side and back, are other points to remember in considering the unusual safety of the new Ford.

Kaukauna—Joseph Jansen was re-elected president of the Kaukauna Gun club at its annual meeting at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the council rooms in the municipal building. William Harwood was re-elected vice president, Louis Wolf was elected secretary and treasurer, and E. N. Elworth, captain. The officers were selected by the board of directors which is composed of Joseph Jansen, Louis Wolf, R. H. McCarty, William Harwood and Edward Haas.

It was decided to hold the first shoot of the year on Sunday, April 21. A committee composed of Harold Engerson, Edward Haas and Ben Prugh was named to take charge of the first shoot. After the first shoot, regular shoots will be held every second week.

Kaukauna again will enter the Northeastern Wisconsin Trapshooting league. The club has been a member of the league for a number of years. Sheboygan will be dropped from the league this year, but otherwise the same cities will belong to the league. The city to take Sheboygan's place has not been selected.

The financial and social report given were the best in the history of the club, which was organized in the '80's. It was planned to increase the membership to 65. At the present time it has 46 active members. The club has about five acres of land on the lower Fox river, a club house there, and two traps. It is a place where many picnics every summer. Membership fee was placed at $12.00 a year.

STATE SENATORS
PUT SKIDS UNDER
2 PROPOSED BILLS

Gasoline Tax Referendum Voted Down in Upper House of Legislature

Madison—(P)—The state legislative machine in its fourth week has gained sufficient momentum to dispose of measures which have been brought before it, as well as receive suggested changes in Wisconsin's laws.

The Senate has taken the lead in voting down measures. It killed Senator Thomas M. Duncan's proposal for a referendum on the question of increasing the gasoline tax. It also rejected Senator William Markham's attempt to amend U. S. Senator John J. Blaine for voting against the Kellogg peace treaty.

Affirmative action was taken by the Assembly on a Senate resolution authorizing the heads of various government divisions to send representatives on the second annual Wisconsin good will tour.

The wet and dry issue, ten years after the passage of national prohibition law, retains a youthful vigor in the legislature. The senate committee on state and local government has placed its approval on Senator Duncan's request for a referendum on the questions of repealing the state enforcement act and of legalizing 2.75 per cent beer. The resolutions have yet to face a fight on the floor of both Assembly and Senate, as well as in Assembly committee.

Simultaneously with the move to modify the dry law has come a proposal from Senator Howard Teasdale to make its enforcement even more stringent. He introduced a bill which would make the buyer and drinker of liquor guilty as well as the one who sells it. His measure asks jail sentences for purchases of liquor.

A general realignment of congressional districts over the state, shifting various counties from the ones in which they are now located, was proposed by Assemblyman Charles A. Budlong. A return to the convention system of choosing candidates for office was asked by Assemblyman Wallace Ingalls, who would retain the primary election, but have each political group or faction meet in convention to select candidate.

DAIRY STRIKE IS CLOSED BY COMPROMISE

Farmers Shipping to Chicago Market to Get $2.64 Until April 1

Chicago—(AP)—Dairy farmers supplying the Chicago market will receive $2.64 per hundredweight for milk, at least until April 1.

The price, which represents a compromise between the $2.85 demanded by the farmers in the recent milk controversy and the old price of $2.50, was set Saturday night by the arbitrator, Dr. Clyde L. King of Philadelphia.

The Pure Milk association, representing the farmers, and the dealers indicated Sunday they would abide by their advance agreement to accept Mr. King's decision.

Don R. Geyer, field manager of the Pure Milk association, said, however, that the result of the arbitration was a "deep disappointment" to the farmers.

It is understood the change will make no difference in the price to the consumers.

The decisions made the new price effective Jan. 1 and ordered the buyers to pay a 1 cent checkoff for each hundredweight to the Pure Milk association. Previous agreements to buy only from members of the association and to consider the question of non-members not later than May 1 were approved.

The price controversy which brought about the arbitration started several months ago and reached its climax early in January when dairy farmers went on "strike" for two weeks and diverted nearly a half million pounds of milk daily from the metropolitan market.

ARREST 458 FOR GAME VIOLATIONS IN 2 MONTHS

Madison—(AP)—From Nov. 15 to Jan. 15, 458 arrests for violations of the state fish and game laws were made, the conservation commission announced Monday.

More than half of the arrests during the two months period were for hunting law violations. Of the 264 hunting violations, 175 concerned deer hunting, a large force of extra wardens having been sent into the north woods during the deer season.

Violations of the trapping laws accounted for 122 arrests; fishing violations for 41; carrying loaded guns in automobiles for 20, and securing hunting licenses illegally for 18. Two arrests were made for having poison in a hunting or trapping camp; and for resisting an officer.

A total of $14,805 was collected in fines, all of which went to the state school fund.

The commission announced it will give the names and addresses of violators to anyone making such request. It believes that by making public the names of violators, future infractions of the law may be prevented.

SPRING SEMESTER OF SCHOOL STARTS FEB. 11

Milwaukee—(AP)—The spring semester of the University of Wisconsin extension day school here will open Feb. 1, according to an announcement Monday by Dean Chester D. Snell.

Four new instructors raises the day school faculty to 31 persons and permits, Dean Snell said, a complete program for students who are high school graduates.

From a census of the present enrollment, it is found that about one-third of the freshman students of the extension school graduated from high school from one to 17 years ago, and that students have come here to school from more than 20 high schools outside of Milwaukee.

Dean Snell said this is evident because the Milwaukee extension division "is not a substitution" set up for the benefit of one city, but is an institution serving special educational needs for the state at large.

"The outstanding need served in the continued education of those who must support themselves while learning," he said, "such students find varied opportunities for employment in Milwaukee business and industry, while day, late afternoon and even a university extension division classes give a flexible schedule for instruction."

He explained that the day school gives high school graduates a chance "to salvage their high school training" by taking advantage of the two-year collegiate course offered.

Library Notes

The story of Rasputin, the Holy Devil, by Rene Fudop-Miller, is one of the new books at the Appleton library. "Preacher and brawler, redeemer and debauchee," says Fudop-Miller, he became "the friend of the Emperor and Empress, worshipped as a saint by society ladies, and reviled by politicians, general, and Princes of the court. As the uncrowned ruler of Russia, the book is stimulating, uncanny, and highly informing."

Another book added this week is "The Trial of Mary Dugan" by Bayard Veiller, a melodrama in three acts. In this play Veiller has turned an actual murder trial into a play, taking each step of the trial from beginning to end.

A book of an entirely different nature is "The Care and Handling of Dogs" by Dr. John Lynn Leonard, a volume popular with owners of dogs. The book covers all the points a person intending to become a dog owner needs, from the selection of the proper breed to the rearing of the animal after it is purchased.

Demands in non-fiction are for "The Philippine Islands," Forbes; "Dictionary of American Biography," Johnson, editor; "Lacoste on Tennis," Lacoste; "Tennis," Helen Willis; "American Negro Folk Songs," White; "The Spanish Pageant," Riggs; "Twelve Portraits of the French Revolution," Beraud; "The Fourth Musketeer," Lucas-Dubreton; "English Literature Through the Ages," Gibbons; "Our Map of South America," Kouser; "Woman in the Making of America," Bruce; "The Story of France," Van Dyke; "Important Pictures of the Louvre," Heywood; "Psychology of Personality," Bagby; "Fabulous New Orleans," Saxon; "Tamerlane," Lamb; "Florence," Van Dyke; and "The Sewing Book," Hyde.

A book of mystery and adventure, an ideal story for girls up to 16 years of age, can be found in the children's department. It tells the story of a trip to China in 1847 in a beautiful clipper ship, with Hope Winchester all unknowingly carrying with her both the key to her grandfather's lost fortune and the seal of the White Buddha.

"The Family Flivers to Frisco" by F. F. Van de Water is both an amusing and story of a trip and a source of practical information.

"Young Decorators," by Nancy McClelland tells in a simple way the principles by which boys and girls may intelligently decorate their rooms. It points out that it isn't "things" alone which make a house lovely, but that it is spirit that counts.

"The Piece-aug Book" by Anna Blauvelt is something new in the way of fun for small children.

Other popular books for youngsters are "The Story of Old Ironsides, the cradle of the U. S. Navy," by E. B. and A. A. Knipe; "Caravans to Santa Fe," A. S. Malkus; "Clearing Weather," Cornelia Meigs; "Captain Madeline," Mary DuBois; "Cherique," M. F. W. Parker; and "Dr. Pete of the Sierras," M. M. Davis.

CONSERVATION GROUP GIVES CONGRESS BILL

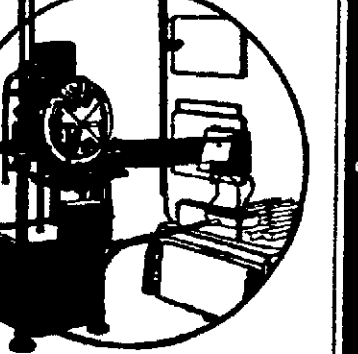

Madison—(AP)—A resolution adopted by the Wisconsin conservation commission is being forwarded to Washington, recommending passage of a bill before Congress, granting to Wisconsin all lands found by survey to exist between the re-established meander line of streams and lakes and the actual water frontage on which the state is a riparian owner.

The commission believes this bill important in protecting state property rights to lands on rivers and lakes. If the bill is not passed, it may be necessary for the state to buy this land, already purchased once, or be deprived of valuable water frontage.

A copy of the resolution was sent to each member of the Wisconsin congressional delegation.

McIlvaine Oil Burner

Ideal for warm air furnace installation

Warm Air Furnaces are designed to operate with a continuous coal fire — they will not stand the alternate heating and cooling of intermittent firing. With the McIlvaine the flame burns continuously and moderately. It is not turned on and off. It does not crack the furnace fire pot or open up the joints. It does not force odors out into the circulating system. "The McIlvaine" is ideal also for hot water and steam plants.

Your Income Tax

No. 1

Thousands of inquiries have reached the Bureau of Internal Revenue relative to changes in tax legislation. The purpose of the bureau is to answer these questions in a series of newspaper statements, based on the revenue act of 1928, approved May 29, 1928.

The rates of income and surtax applicable to individual income, and the personal exemption of individuals and credits for dependents, remain unchanged. The normal tax rate is 1 1/2 per cent on the first $4,000 in excess of personal exemption, credits for dependents, etc., 3 per cent on the next $4,000, and 5 per cent on the balance. The surtax rates apply to net income in excess of $10,000. The maximum rate is 20 per cent, which applies to net income in excess of $100,000.

The rate of tax on the income of corporations is reduced from 13 1/2 per cent to 12 per cent. The same rate applies to the income of insurance companies, reduction with respect to this class of taxpayers being from 12 1/2 per cent to 12 per cent. The credit allowed a domestic corporation, the net income of which is $25,000 or less, is increased from $2,000 to $3,000.

Time Worn Play Brings Success To Show Troupe

New York — Groundhog day and Feb. 23 will be gala occasions at the Old Rialto theatre in Hoboken, across-the-Hudson.

Eliza, the heroine of "After Dark," who is "neither maid, nor wife, nor widow," will jump off a property dock into a mattress sea with a louder thud than usual, and the handful of salt that serves as a splash of water will be tossed higher than ever by the obliging stage hand.

Christopher Morley, author, presario, and his troupe will celebrate Feb. 2 the publication of "The Season of Bohemia," a "tender and jocose" record of their unique and highly successful theatrical venture in the town made famous by vaudeville wits. On the later date they will celebrate the one-hundredth performance of Dion Boucicault's masterpiece of 1863.

By that time Morley will have in production at another old Hoboken theatre "The Black Crook," first of the extravaganzas that preceded musical comedy. The play will be revived on Washington's Birthday exactly as it was first done in 1863 when amazon choruses in tight checked nice people. "The Black Crook," it will be recalled, helped make famous the legs of Frankie Bailey, later a burlesque queen and now in the Actors' Home on Staten island.

SOPHISTICATES' DELIGHT

Morley's success as a producer is one of these lucky breaks. Last Labor Day holidays even to figure frequently in the scheme) he and his company opened the Rialto with stock productions.

Keeps On Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before and after childbirth. I am a mother of three children—two little girls and a baby boy. I would get run-down, nervous, dizzy and weak sometimes so I had to lie in bed. I would take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic and I always saw an improvement after taking the first bottle. I found it to be a good tonic. I always recommend your medicine to my friends and I cannot speak too highly of them."—MRS. ANNA LOUDERBACK, 1607 S. Front Street, Phila., Pa.

Monmouth Rumps Over Lawrence Vikings, 30 to 16

DENNEYMEN DROP TO SECOND PLACE IN MIDWEST LOOP

Fast Breaking Offense of Victors Is Too Much for Invaders

MONMOUTH, ILL.—The Lawrence college Vikings went in to second place in the Midwest conference standings here Saturday evening when Monmouth college basketball team romped over the Wisconsin entry 30 to 16. Previous to Saturday's game the Vikings had led the league with three games won and none lost.

A fast breaking offense displayed by the Monmouth five was too much for the Vikings and they were a lost and bewildered team throughout the game. The score at the end of the first half was 12 to 4 in favor of Monmouth.

Lawrence scored only three field goals during the evening. Rasmussen, forward getting two counters and Pierce guard, one. Coach A. C. Denney of the invaders used his entire squad in an effort to find a scoring combination that could combat the strong Monmouth offense.

Monday afternoon the Vikings will complete their road trip by playing Beloit at Beloit. The game counts in the Little Four conference but not in the Midwest. The Lawrence-Beloit game at Appleton is the official Midwest game for the two teams.

CURLERS READY FOR ANNUAL BONSPIEL

State Meet Begins at Portage Monday; Closes Saturday

Portage — Forty-eight rinks of 13 cities in three states were here Monday for the opening of the twenty-first annual bonspiel of the Wisconsin curling association in which they will participate. The curling will close Saturday night.

Play was to begin on nine sheets Monday morning and was to continue until midnight, the committee having arranged five draws. Play in three major events will occupy much time Monday, with points toward the grand aggregate, the coveted sweepstakes trophy at stake.

The rink of skip Otto Schwantz of Portage, 1928 winner of the bonspiel held here, will compete again. Other players on the championship four are Sam Ernsparger, Henry Denzies and William Jewett.

Nearly 200 curlers were here Sunday night. Included among them were Roy Williams, widely known skip of Minneapolis, Mr. Schwantz and Clarence Jamieson of Madison. Trophies will go to the winning rinks and to individual members of championship fours. A banquet is planned for Thursday night.

Rinks are from Chicago, Milwaukee, Wauwatosa, Medford, Madison, Lodi, Poyntette, Arlington, Cambria, Pardeeville, Endeavor, La Crosse, Minneapolis and Portage.

SONNENBERG DEFENDS TITLE MONDAY NIGHT

New York, (P)—Gus Sonnenberg, former Dartmouth college star, defends his heavyweight wrestling championship in a finish match with Howard Cantonwine, of Iowa, in Madison Square Garden Monday night. It will be Sonnenberg's fourth since he won the title recently in Boston from Ed (Strangler) Lewis.

Since then he has beaten Charlie Hansen in Kansas City; Frank Johnson in St. Louis; and John Smith in Philadelphia.

First Invasion of East

For the first time in history, the Iowa baseball team will make a journey east this spring, going as far east as Boston for games.

INDEPENDENTS BEAT NEW LONDON TEAM

Invaders Offer Little Opposition to Fast Traveling Locals

Appleton Independent hockey team skated to an easy victory over New London at First ward rink Sunday afternoon and copped the game 1F to 0. The local squad has beaten New London in every game during the last three years.

The invaders, although billed as a strong aggregation presented little opposition because of inability to practice. Reports are there are no good rinks at New London and that the invaders were lost when they took the ice here.

Appleton lineup was strengthened by the return of Coach Joseph Shields to the ice. He was scheduled to play last week against Neenah but forced to withdraw because of an injured back received in a high school practice game.

The A. A. L. bowling team copped a match game from the Bergstrom Paper company of A. A. L. alleys last week, 2,813 and 2,658. W. Belling was high man for the local team with a 596 while Muench of the Paper company team led the pace for the two squads with a 617. His games were 188, 207 and 222.

Coaches Team and Boxes
Lou Mutzel, a sophomore at Bucknell, is coach of the boxing team and also a member of the team as a light heavyweight.

IF a prizefighter in the days when this picture was taken had tried to give a lecture on Shakespeare to the Yale students he would have been locked up.

One glance is enough to assure anybody that these three huskies could not under any circumstance recite segments of Othello or even Venus and Adonis. But, if asked whether a right hook to the chin was more effective than a left to the breadbasket, anyone of them would take the head of the class.

In short, these three gentlemen offer a perfect example of the old school of boxing. In the center is Jim Jeffries, heavyweight champion. His brother, Jack Jeffries, stands to the left, while the great Tommy Ryan, middle and welterweight king, is on the right.

This picture was taken during one of their training sojourns in Happy Hollow, back of the Arlington Hotel at Hot Springs, Ark. Jeffries was preparing for his fight with Gus Ruhlin, which took place in 1901 in the old Mechanics' Pavilion, San Francisco.

That fight saw the death blow to Ruhlin's title hopes. Stimulated by a victory over Tom Sharkey via the knockout route, Gus was certain he was destined to become heavyweight champion and Billy Madden, his manager, urged him on in every way he knew how.

For two rounds it looked as though Ruhlin really would transfer the title to his own broad shoulders. But in the third he ax, wielded by Jeffries, fell with a vengeance and by the end of the fourth Ruhlin was in bad shape. Just before the fifth ended, Jeffries whipped a terrific left into

For two rounds it looked as though Ruhlin really would transfer the title to his own broad shoulders. But in the third he ax, wielded by Jeffries, fell with a vengeance and by the end of the fourth Ruhlin was in bad shape. Just before the fifth ended, Jeffries whipped a terrific left into Ruhlin's stomach. The gong rang and Ruhlin, in terrible pain, staggered to his corner. Madden took one look at his man and tossed in the sponge.

Jack Jeffries also was a fighter, but he lived in a golden age of heavyweights and was not quite good enough to tackle Fitzsimmons, Corbett and men of that type. He would no doubt rank high in the list were he alive today, but then he worked as a sparring partner to his brother.

Ryan, middleweight ruler, served as an invaluable boxing teacher to Jeffries. At the request of William A. Brady, Jeff's manager, Ryan took the big fellow in hand and taught him how to hit properly. In addition to that, it was under Ryan's tutelage that the famous Jeffries crouch came into existence.

Around The Sport World

JUST A GROWING BOY
RTIE McGOVERN, custodian of the Ruth girl line, announced as the Big Fella was getting ready to go south that he had worked himself down to 230½ pounds.

"This makes the Babe in the best shape for this time of year that he has been in since he started working with me," McGovern said. "We have decided that the Babe will play at around 222 pounds this year. His best weight last year was 218 pounds, but we have put it up this year to allow four pounds for normal growth of a year's time."

A BETTER AND SAFER JOB
McGovern, since he went into the training racket, has become very successful through the publicity he got in bringing the Babe and Johnny Farrell, the golf fella, around into physical shape.

He is used to fiddle around with prize fighters and was one of the first referees licensed by the New York Boxing Commission when the Walker law came in.

He worked in a bout one night down at the old Pioneer Club, a horse sales barn on the East Side and some of the boys didn't like his decision.

He was greeted with a blackjack when he stepped out of the club and had a lot of his bones kicked in by the boys.

Hoppies Wieners beat the Palace Restaurant bowling team of Waupaca, in a match game bowled on the Arcade alleys, Sunday afternoon, 2,958 to 2,864. The local team also copped two of three games. A. Weisgerber with a 654 led the Appleton pin busters, his games being 201, 224, and 220.

GABBY STICKS TO FACTS
When the parents of a young lady in Chicago announced that their daughter was to become the wife of Gabby Hartnett, the Chicago catcher, the reporters wanted to write a swell romance about it.

It would have made a good story that they saw each other for the first time in the Cubs' ball park. That Gabby was chasing a foul and fell into the box where the young lady was sitting. Their eyes met. She knew he was the fellow for her and he knew in that one glance that he had met his wife.

Or he could have been knocked cold on the concrete floor of the box and when he came to he saw her rubbing his head and pouring pop into his face.

But Gabby wouldn't stand for fancy yarns.
"There isn't anything pretty to write about our romance. We just love each other and we've known each other for a long, long time," he said.

WHAT IS HE, THEN?
When Tunney and Muldoon and their associates are through making mistakes in the effort to find a satisfactory successor to the vacant heavyweight championship title, the New York Boxing Commission might devote some attention to the ransling situation. A committee might be appointed to find out who is the ransling champion.

One of Jack Curley's piano movers filed a challenge with the commission against Der Gus Sonnenberg and Muldoon, the reformed ransler, threw it out the window.

"There is no champion," the reformed ransler decreed.

BIG TEN CAGERS RESUME SCHEDULE

Wisconsin, Purdue, Minnesota Will Be Idle During Week

BY PAUL R. MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, (P)—The drive for the Big Ten basketball crown this week shifts from low to high gear where it will race along until the finish of the campaign, March 9.

Four conference battles, headlined by the clash between Michigan's undefeated team and Ohio State at Ann Arbor Saturday night, left the season from the hull that has prevailed for the past three weeks because of semester examinations. The other games are: Northwestern at Indiana, Tuesday, and Illinois at Chicago and Indiana at Iowa on Saturday night.

Butler college of Indianapolis, invades Illinois Monday night for what promises to be a lively non-conference skirmish. Only three teams, Purdue, Wisconsin and Minnesota, will be idle during the week.

The Michigan-Ohio State game will be an interesting barometer of what may be expected during the remainder of the championship chase. Michigan, which looted into undisputed possession of first place Jan. 21, when Wisconsin defeated Purdue, has been idle since Jan. 14. If it defeats Ohio State by a decisive margin, it will not only allay fears of staleness because of inactivity, but will become a greater favorite to win the title than ever.

The Wolverines have a longer, but somewhat easier schedule left than their principal rivals, Purdue and Wisconsin which are tied for second place with five victories and one defeat. They have eight games left but do not have to meet Purdue or Indiana, while Wisconsin must play them at Ann Arbor. Michigan handed Wisconsin its only defeat at Madison, 31 to 23.

NEENAH FIVE BEATS "Y" IN PRACTICE GAME
Kimberly-Clark company basketball team of Neenah and Appleton T. M. C. A. five indulged in a practice game Saturday evening in the local floor, the Neenah team winning the informal fracas, 32 and 25. There were no regular games scheduled on the T. M. C. A. Industrial league because of postponements.

The first half of the game ended 18 and 13, Klutz keeping the Neenah team ahead with three field goals. In the second half he was aided in his scoring efforts by K. Olson who caught three field goals and one free throw and by Ziegler, center, with two field goals and a gift shot. Dick Wolfe with three field goals and two free throws was high point man for the association team.

WALSH STANDS TENTH IN SOUTH CENTRAL OPEN
Hot Springs, Ark., (P)—Frank Walsh, Appleton cager, stood tenth in the standings of the South Central open golf tournament, Monday, as Bobby Crankshank, Wild Bill Melhorn and Horton Smith prepared to play off their deadlock for first place. Walsh's card was 156, 72-74-79-77.

DETROIT FIGURES IN FLAG CHASE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yanks and Macks Not Much Improved for 1929 Scramble

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
THE open season for claiming, running weeks ahead of schedule, is upon us. The usually reticent and conservative Connie Mack opposed his head first and took a bow as the manager of the 1929 American League champions.

While the veteran Mack was admitting that his Philadelphia Athletics were going to win the pennant some of the other boys shook off their modesty and said a few kind words for themselves.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, agreed with Mack that several teams in the league had been strengthened since last fall and that competition will be keener and that, after considering all circumstances, the Yankees hoped to win the pennant again.

Howling Dan Howley, whose magic wand worked last year on the St. Louis Browns, agreed with Mack and Barro that several teams have been strengthened since last fall and that competition will be keener, and he ended with a prayer that no bad injuries will bust up his club.

DETROIT ADDS WORDS
Bucky Harris, in a new spot at the manager of the Detroit Tigers, agreed with Mack and Barrow and Howley that several teams have been strengthened since last fall and that competition will be keener and he added a few words.

"Several clubs have been strengthened, but we have added more strength than any other club in the league and we had a good ball club to build on. If it is an act to claim the pennant let me in on it, too," he said.

Mack thinks that a stronger Detroit, Boston, Cleveland and Chicago club will make things harder for the Yankees to win as many games as they won the first half of the season last year and that a years experience on some of his young fellows will enable him to get away to a better start.

The Yankees hope that the lame arms of Penning, Moore and Lazear are cured and that they will escape the disaster that those lame arms threatened them with in the last quarter of the 1928 race.

YANKS, A'S NOT IMPROVED
Neither the Yanks nor the Athletics have been improved since last season, if a superficial glance is accurate. The Yanks can't be sure about those arms, or about Koenig at third. Durocher at second or Larry at short. And if the Athletics are improved a lot of managers would like to know where Mack got the cure for weak hearts.

The Red Sox have a lot of new faces. But that doesn't mean anything. The Indians have two new outfielders, but you have to have somebody to throw the ball in any league. And if the White Sox are a better team you will have to take the peppy chatter of a Blackburn as enough proof for it.

It's too early for one of those expert things to tell the managers who is right and wrong about this matter. The expert has to do his experting just before the season opens or do it twice, and once is enough.

RATHER THAN BE SHOT
If we were to be shot now unless we said something we would say that Master Bucky Harris seems to be a swell spot to do some more of that boy wonder stuff. All he needs to raise a lot of devil next season in the league is the good will and the co-operation of Mule Ubb. That fellow might win 25 ball games.

We happen to know that, in the early part of last season, Master Harris had been given to understand that he could pick the spot he liked best in the league and that Washington would not stand in his way.

And, we happen to know, Master Harris didn't even look around or glance at the league standing.

"Detroit," he said to himself and a friend or two, "is the strongest club in the league next to the Yankees. I like that ball club. Needs patching only in a couple of spots."

CLUB GOT ITS PATCHES
He is now getting ready to start the season as the manager of the ball club he thought was the second strongest in the league. It has been patched and he thinks it is now the strongest club in the league.

In the budding talk about the 1929 race not much attention is being paid to the Detroit. Their position is mindful of that of the Illinois football team in the Big Ten at the start of the season. Harris, No one mentioned the name of Illinois. It was Ohio State, Iowa and Wisconsin. But when they counted up at the end of the season Illinois had the championship.

All That Glitters Isn't a Perfect Basketball Team

YOUNGER TO ATTEND GROUP MEETING OF BADGER TEACHERS

McKinley Junior High School
Head Is on Textbook Committee

Frank B. Younger, principal of McKinley junior high school, will go to Madison next Saturday to attend a meeting of the committee of the Wisconsin Teacher's association which has been appointed to study the use of textbooks and source material in the public schools. Other members of the committee are Superintendent C. E. Hutten, Marinette, chairman; and Miss Joanna Hannan, Milwaukee, and the group will meet in the office of M. C. Palmer, president of the association.

At the annual meeting of the teachers association last fall a resolution was drawn up concerning the investigation of materials used in the teaching of children. The resolution says, in part:

"Religious, political and commercial propaganda has no place in our schools and the policy and efforts of any agency to use the schools for any purposes should be and is condemned. Those administering our schools must not allow themselves, the schools, and the pupils to be used, by means of essay contests, special days and special weeks, and in other ingenious ways to promote the special interests of commercial, political or religious groups.

"On the other hand, no school system can be free unless it is untrammeled in its search for and use of source materials. The teachers of our schools are men and women of intelligence. For any group of laymen to say to them that informational pamphlets, newspapers, magazines, periodicals, books and other educational materials will not be permitted in school buildings and must not be used because pamphlets often bear the names of the companies manufacturing or distributing the product described, because newspapers are partisan, because magazines print controversial articles, because periodicals present material not in selected text-books, because books of text facts which are not in accord with the particular view of the special group—would constitute a policy which could not and should not be tolerated.

"It is important that in their effort to guide boys and girls in their development as self-thinking, discriminating, intelligent and independent men and women, our teachers must not be hampered by prescribed method or material. Freedom in the use of both is essential to free schools and free citizens."

On the basis of this survey of the situation it was decided profitable to appoint a committee to study the problem for a year with a view to presenting a detailed report at the next meeting of the association.

ADD THIRD PATROL TO TROOP OF GIRL SCOUTS

A third patrol has been added to the Cloverleaf troop of girl scouts at Roosevelt junior high school, with Miss Betty Buchanan as patrol leader. Miss Wilhelmina Harms and Estella Scharman are the leaders of the other patrols.

The scout officers for the coming year are Miss Mary Alsted, president; Miss Helen Temmer, secretary, and Miss Dorothy Jane Segal, treasurer. Mrs. William Bauerfend and Miss Florence Fenske are captains.

Recent activities of the Cloverleaf scouts included a sleighride party on Wednesday evening, with a hot lunch at the Appleton Women's club following the ride.

GET COPIES OF 1929 GAME AND FUR LAWS

John E. Hantschel, county clerk, has received a supply of copies of 1929 federal game and fur laws and they are ready for distribution to interested parties. The booklets are published by the federal agricultural department. Those wishing a copy may get one by calling at Mr. Hantschel's office at the courthouse.

Upwards of 250 recreation rooms have been established in Rome, Italy, to provide for the medical care of poor children.

HOLD FIRE DRILLS REGULARLY IN SCHOOLS

Fire drills are held at least once a month in Appleton public and parochial schools, according to the report of Appleton chamber of commerce to the national chamber as part of an inter-chamber fire prevention campaign now under way. There are 14 public and parochial schools in the city besides Lawrence college and the Actual business college, the report shows. Dressed for the theatre

If doctors' warnings were heeded literally, this is how you would dress for the theatre. Statistics prove that the front line trenches were hardly more dangerous to health than crowds of coughers and sneezers.

Since you can't wear so outlandish a costume, protect yourself before and after exposure in poorly ventilated gatherings by taking GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. The mild laxative effect rids the system of poisons caused by colds. The tonic benefits build up the body's defenses.

Never wait for serious symptoms. Use the tablets from the little white box promptly, and frequently you will sidestep the cold entirely; or throw it off quickly. How Glass Is Made

The beautiful cut glass you see is first blown thick. Then on grindstones of different sizes the grooves are cut according to a pattern. Then the articles are polished. Skillful workmen are needed for these processes and the risk of breakage is great.

Cheap table glassware is made by taking a lump of soft glass and pressing it into shape as if it were made of putty.

Wire-glass, useful to prevent the spread of fire, is made by imbedding wire netting between two sheets while they are still hot.

Some unbreakable glass is made by placing a thin sheet of a transparent gummy substance between two sheets of glass and pressing them into one while hot. This glass will crack but will not shatter, and is sometimes used for windshields. (To Be Continued)

EXPECT CITY AIRPORT TO BE REALITY

Several Young Men Sign Up for Squadron—Site of Field Not Chosen

Special to Post-Crescent.
New London.—That New London will be one of the many progressive small cities to drop into stride with swiftly developing air service was made reasonably definite at the meeting of business men, prospective air pilots and promoters at the city hall on Saturday evening. Several number of young men have already signed contracts making them members of New London's squadron and at the next meeting, which is to be held in two weeks, others are expected.

At the recent meeting Karl Hagen, president of the Northern Airways company of Appleton, spoke of the possibilities of young men in various branches of air service, and of what an airport would eventually mean to the community. Mr. Hagen was accompanied here by Miss Lydia Kallio and Mr. Noel, both representatives of the Wisconsin Civil Air service, the latter a pilot. Mr. Noel is also an instructor in the service, and diagrams added interest to his talk.

Ralph Hanson of the Better Motors company, who is intensely interested in the project expressed his confidence in the location of an airport here. In fact he said, plans have progressed so splendidly that instruction will begin before the winter months are over. The first lessons in flying will cover a wide scope, such as the thorough knowledge of a plane, its handling and mechanical makeup.

POINT TO ADVANTAGES
The Better Motors company has evinced a keen interest in the airport question and has been working with the service representatives knowing that the development of the scheme will eventually mean to the city. The location of an airport will attract business to the city and the present plans, Mr. Hanson believes, are only in keeping with what every progressive town and city should consider.

New London, it is hoped, will eventually be put on a regular air mail route and the training of pilots and the establishing of standardized air pilot equipment will put the city on the map in a way totally in step with the methods of a progressive nation, he said. Nothing can be done definitely toward deciding upon an airfield site until spring, Mr. Hanson believes. Though many fields may be had, there are many angles to be considered. It is hoped that a tract of land may be secured close to the city upon a main traveled highway, but the decision of which field shall be purchased or leased is a minor project just now.

NEW LONDON LOSES TO OCONTO FALLS BY 14 TO 18 SCORE

Red and White Lost on Large Gym Floor but Praises Rival Players

New London.—The Red and White basketball team lost another close game when it played at Oconto Falls. The score was 14 to 18. The team returned on Saturday reporting that never had they played in a finer gym or before a crowd showing such a fine spirit of sportsmanship. The team played in Oconto Falls' new $70,000 gymnasium and during the first half were lost on the large floor. Besserdick, former Oshkosh Normal star, and now of the Green Bay Columbus club, refereed the game.

scoring when he broke through the Falls defense for a basket. The Oconto boys came back with a rush and by playing their forwards on the corners of the hall allowed their guards to slip through the center of the floor and score three baskets in succession. Their offense was built about this play, and as a result Dayton, in trying to break it up, went out of the game on fouls. Dayton was lost to the squad shortly after the second half started. Coach Polonis switched his players around by shoving in Derrback and later pulling Ladwig from his center position to guarding the basket. Ladwig seemed to have an off evening, missing several shots on his rebounds. The Red and Whites did fairly well on free throws, making about half of them while Oconto Falls made very few of their points on free throws. The Falls team alone on Dayton's fast break chances to secure six points. The home boys outplayed their rivals in the second half, their offense working smoother and they scored nine points to their opponents seven. Pohland made four points during the evening's play, while Burton and Pfeiffer were making the same number of points. Brown's first basket of the evening were the only points he garnered for the home team during the evening.

Coach Polonis has two games scheduled for this week. On Wednesday evening a return game will be played with Hortonville at Oconto Falls, and on Friday evening Gillet comes here for a game. New London fans will have the opportunity of seeing Gillet's mainstay, Skelly, formerly of the E. Green Bay team. The upstarters whole team is built around this player, and one of their guards by the name of Kusky. The Black and Orange squad and last in the conference percentages but their, like New London, have been losing only one or two point margins. It is expected that another record breaking crowd will be on hand when these two teams meet at Werner's hall.

Music Brings Romance To Chicago Opera Pair

A romance of the Chicago Civic Opera company has flowered with the marriage of Henry Weber (upper left) and Marion Claire (lower right).

Chicago.—(AP)—Romance of real life often results from stranger circumstances than those the world's greatest operas. There is, for instance, the romance of Marion Claire, singer, and Henry Weber, conductor, youthful members of the Chicago Civic Opera company, who were married in the closing days of this year's season.

Strange it is that Marion Claire, 24-year-old daughter of an attorney, and Weber, 28, son of a wagon maker—both native Chicagoans—should be thrown together at the opera, performance of which, until the past few years, was left entirely to Europeans. Until they met in Europe, both seeking the golden apple of musical success, neither knew the other. Miss Claire then was the wife of a childhood sweetheart.

Weber had lived half his life in Europe, studying, sometimes almost starving, to attain success. He was in Austria in its darkest days and many of his possessions were sold to buy food. Money from relatives could not reach him. Weber conducted his first opera when he was 20. Five years ago the Civic opera company brought him home.

Miss Claire obtained a divorce, and here the strange loss of fact is emphasized—the Civic opera company discovered and signed her. Her debut had been made in the famous old city of opera—Milan. The romance would have been more the storybook kind had Miss Claire and Weber been impoverished geniuses. Here again real life is sometimes stranger than fiction; both are of wealthy families.

SOFT CHEESE IMPORTS DECREASED LAST YEAR

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Washington, D. C.—Cheese production in Great Britain amounts to about 140,000,000 pounds per annum, according to figures made public by the department of commerce. Cheese imports, the report shows, in the last few years have not varied appreciably, except that there is a decided reduction in the imports of soft cheeses. This is accounted for by the development of the business in Great Britain of milling and packing cheese in individual portions. Package cheese is more uniform in quality and flavor than the hard cheese, which is largely produced on individual farms and, while generally of very high quality, is lacking in uniformity. Continued countries have lost the main part of their business with Great Britain in soft cheese in the import business in hard cheese. The per capita consumption is approximately 10 pounds. While the figures for 1928 show a decrease in the number of dairy cattle in Great Britain amounting to 70,000 head, 112,000,000 pounds of butter was produced. The reduction in dairy cattle is attributed to the unsatisfactory returns to dairy farmers in 1927 under their national price agreement with the dairy distributors. The production of butter in Great Britain is principally a farm industry. The per capita consumption of butter is probably still about 16 pounds, it is said.

K. C. CONVENTION COMING TO STATE

Catholic Order Will Meet in Milwaukee on Aug. 20, 21, and 22

Milwaukee.—(AP)—For the first time in its 47 years history, the supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus comes to Wisconsin this year. The order will meet here August 20, 21 and 22, and state officers and committees of Milwaukee, Pere Marquette council are making plans to entertain between 12,000 and 15,000 visitors. Delegates and officers from every state in the union, all provinces of Canada, the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Cuba and Mexico and Panama are expected to number nearly 500.

Milwaukee was selected unanimously for the convention at a recent meeting of the supreme board of directors in New York. The move, he said, was because the Wisconsin metropolis is centrally located and close to hundreds of subordinate councils in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. Productions have been made that a new attendance record may be established. The order was founded in New Haven, Conn., in 1852 and the Wisconsin council was organized in 1902. John P. Martin, Green Bay, one of the pioneer workers for the order in the Badger state, is deputy supreme knight, the second highest office in the order. He was selected at the Portland (Ore.) convention two years ago after several years' membership on the supreme board. Martin H. Carmody, Grand Rapids, Mich., is supreme knight. When the order was instituted in Wisconsin, councils were at Milwaukee, West Superior, Janesville, Madison, Beloit, Appleton, Green Bay and Oshkosh, according to Richard J. Hennessey, Milwaukee, state deputy. Today there are 74 councils in the state with a membership of nearly 23,000 as compared to seven councils with 634 members 27 years ago. Other state officers are: Emmet J. Carrigan, Milwaukee, state secretary; J. F. Kettenhofen, Oconomowoc, state treasurer; Grover Stapleton, Sturgeon Bay, state advocate; M. A. Stutz, Tomahawk, state warden, and the Rev. J. R. Murphy, Elroy, state chaplain.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

HOOVER VISITING FLORIDA DURING FISHING SEASON

President-elect Will Have Ample Opportunity to Enjoy Sport in South

Jacksonville, Fla., (AP)—President-elect Hoover comes to Florida at the height of the fishing season—in fact, of both fishing seasons. For, while the amateur Florida fisherman now goes out for his 150-pound tarpon, the professional Florida fisherman concentrates on catching 150 million pounds of other kinds of fish.

Forty years ago Florida marketed less than a million dollars' worth of sea products. Today she leads southern fisheries, shipping annually to a broadening market catches approaching $6,000,000 in value.

The key to Florida's fisheries may be found at the Key West wharf market. The householder can buy a string of 20 different edible fish at Key West.

Various parts of Florida specialize on certain fishery products: Pensacola for red snapper and Palm Beach for kingfish and Spanish mackerel; Key West alone for spiny lobster and sea turtles; Fernandina for shrimp; Tarpon Springs for sponges; Apalachicola for oysters; Marco for clams, and Okeechobee for catfish. Other important fishing centers are Bradenton, Miami, Punta Gorda and Tampa.

But Jacksonville has assumed the mantle of Boston in Florida. Real connections with the northwest and south enable Jacksonville to gather into its municipal arms 10,000,000 pounds of Florida sea products annually and ship them out in some 600 carloads.

The warm Gulf stream waters are unusual in the variety and curious qualities of their inhabitants when compared with northern waters. The names of fish suggest Dickens: Porpoise is a resident of the reefs; Mullet is much sought by net fishermen; Grunt is good eating despite his noisy habits. The Groupers comprise a large, middle class family; the Sergeant Major proudly wears six black chevrons; Cowfish looks not unlike Mr. Podsnap, and Swellfish can be as round as Mr. Pickwick.

Probably the most astonishing fish surprise that Florida holds is the catfish. Although salt water catfish has won a commercial reputation. Seven million pounds of catfish have been taken out of Lake Okeechobee in one year. Nearly all the catch goes to St. Louis, for no matter what other cities prefer, St. Louis likes its catfish.

Like anyone who is willing to work 60 feet under the surface for two hours at a stretch is eligible for a position in another of Florida's unusual fisheries. After he has been down two hours a sponge gatherer at Tarpon Springs on the west coast gets a well earned rest before descending for another two hours. Of course the divers, most of whom are Greeks, wear diving suits and receive air constantly while they wander over the bottom reaching into crevices picking sponges here and there and placing them in a basket.

SHOW 6 HORSE TEAM AT FARM FOLK WEEK

Annual Gathering Sponsored by College of Agriculture Opens Feb. 4

Chicago (AP)—An incentive for Wisconsin farm folk to attend Farm Folk Week at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture at Madison, February 4-8, will be the appearance of the famous six horse exhibition team of the Union Stock Yards and Transit company, Chicago.

In answer to invitation of members of the Farm Folk Week program staff, the Chicago Stock Yards company will send its show team of six Clydesdale geldings to Madison, to be exhibited to visitors throughout the week. They will give one driving performance at the Little International Horse show.

The six horses, each of which weigh over a ton, and their three-ton exhibition wagon and all equipment will arrive at Madison, in two special cars Tuesday morning, and will remain at the University stock pavilion stables until the close of the week's activities.

The Wednesday night performance will see W. J. (Billy) Wales in the driver's box. He has been driver of exhibition hitchers for more than 50 years. His performance with these six big geldings includes such difficult feats as springing the drafters through a figure eight while they are going at a fast trot, making a circle without moving the pivot wheel of the big wagon from its axis, and with the horses still at a rapid trot, bring the three tandem pairs around until the lead team touches the end-gate of the wagon, and then skid the wagon, pivoting them about until the leaders are completely reversed and faced around to the driver's box.

SAND BOX IS ADDED TO WORKSHOP OF SCHOOL

A new sand box has been added to the kindergarten workshop at Franklin school. The old box, weighted down by more sand than its tone too sturdy legs could uphold, collapsed about a week ago, causing as much excitement among the kiddies as the fall of an ash hill would on a community of ants.

Seven Congresswomen Take Seats In Spring

Washington (AP)—Seven women will sit in the seventy-first congress. From Ruth Hanna McCormick, daughter of Mark Hanna, who has been in politics all her life, to Mrs. Ruth Pratt, widow and mother of five children, the seven have declared war on that time worn old phrase, "the woman in politics." They feel that they were elected to represent the citizens of their respective states, not the feminine voters alone.

The women members of the new congress will convene this spring, if President-elect Hoover calls an extra session, or next December in the regular order of events, are: Mrs. Mary Teresa Norton, Democrat, New Jersey; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts; Mrs. Katherine Langley, Republican, Kentucky; Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, Republican, California; Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Democrat, Florida; and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, Republican, New York.

101 RANCH PARTNER IS KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Ponca City, Okla., (AP)—George Miller, one of the owners of Miller brothers 101 Ranch and 101 Wild West shows, was killed Saturday morning when his car turned over on the slippery pavement a few miles south of here, while on his way to the ranch, which is located at Maryland.

The three Miller brothers, Colonel Joseph C. George L. and Zack T. inherited the 101 ranch, then about 10,000 acres from their father about 20 years ago.

With enterprise in ranching and employing modern farming methods they gradually increased the holdings to 110,000 acres which is now said to be one remaining big ranch in America, and the largest diversified farm in the United States.

The 101 Wild West show, started on a small scale by the Millers with the idea of preserving the traditions of the pioneer days, has become one of the country's better known circuses, and has made extensive foreign tours.

WINNEBAGO COUNTY AGENT IS OFFERED OUTAGAMIE OFFICE

Gustave Sell May Succeed R. A. Amundson if He Can Secure His Release

Gustave Sell, agricultural agent of Winnebago county for the past 12 years, Friday was offered a position as Outagamie county agent by the agricultural committee which met at the courthouse.

The offer is subject to the provision, however, that Mr. Sell can secure his release from Winnebago county where he is now under contract.

Mr. Sell said Saturday that he would be pleased to accept the offer from Outagamie county and he felt quite sure that the Winnebago county officials would permit him to make the change. He said his contract with Winnebago county called for a 60-day notice before leaving but that he felt sure the Winnebago county committee would release him before that time.

He said he hoped he would be able to start work here March 1.

The decision to offer the contract to Mr. Sell was made by the committee here after the members had examined the records and qualifications of more than a score of applicants. Mr. Sell will fill the position vacated by R. A. Amundson, who resigned to accept a position with the state agricultural department as agricultural agent for the state at large.

Mr. Amundson started his duties with the state Feb. 1.

Although Mr. Sell has talked with several members of the Winnebago county committee, no official action has yet been taken. He said the committee probably would meet within the next week to act on the matter.

AMANULLAH TAKES STERN MEASURES TO HALT LOOTING

London (AP)—The Daily Express in a dispatch from Karachi, India, says that Amanullah has taken stern measures to suppress looting by tribesmen between Chaman and Kandahar, in his native country Afghanistan.

Tribesmen caught attacking a caravan were brought in chains to Kandahar where they were tied to the mouths of cannon and blown to bits. All inhabitants were ordered to witness the spectacle.

A Moscow report late Friday said that the Afghan ambassador at that city, Ghoulam Nabl Khan, had advised the soviet government in behalf of Amanullah that he had resumed the temporal power in Afghanistan and had proclaimed himself head of the national government with temporary residence at Kandahar.

HIGHWAY MEN BACK FROM ROAD SCHOOL

A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, and four members of the highway committee returned Friday night from Madison where they spent the week at the annual road show of the state highway committee. Those who made the trip were Supervisors Frank Appleton, Milford Bottrell, James Farrell and Arnold Krueger.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell at close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purgatives. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system.

In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without gripping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not

J. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 95

sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

REDUCES RATES ON LICENSES TO MARRY TO GET "BUSINESS"

Superior (AP)—Even marriage licenses aren't safe from price wars these days.

Because Duluth, Minn., has been getting the cream of the marriage license business at the head of the lakes, A. R. Cole, clerk of the Douglas county court here will sell licenses henceforth for 50 cents, he announced.

The previous fee was $1. While Mr. Cole's price offers brides and grooms a considerable savings, the Duluth price being $2.25, the Douglas county official has to compete with the Minnesota law which permits applicants to marry immediately. The Wisconsin law requires a five-day application and issuance of the license.

Two of the women, Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Kahn, are widows of ex-congressmen, and one, Mrs. Langley, is the wife of Ex-Congressman Massachusetts. Where Is the Fat of Yesterday?

Have you noted how fast excess fat with men and women has disappeared in late years? Slender figures are the rule. Think what millions have gained in youth and beauty, health and vigor by that change.

A great factor has been a discovery made some 25 years ago. Medical research found a cause of excess fat. It lies in weakness of a gland which largely controls nutrition. Too much of the food goes to fat.

Modern physicians in treating obesity now find that gland substance. And that is the main factor embodied in Marmola prescription tablets.

Marmola was perfected by a famous medical laboratory. Its chief factor is a gland food. People have used it for over 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told the results to others—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus, year by year, the use has grown to very large proportions. In the past year alone it has doubled.

The results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has been banished to a large degree.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also fat departs and new vigor comes, you know exactly why. No hard work, no starvation. Just take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

Try this method which for over 20 years has brought new joys to so many. You owe that to yourself. Watch the gradual loss of fat. Enjoy the new energy that comes. You will be delighted. Don't wait longer. Get Marmola now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at 10c per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.
